THE FRONT COVER

This is a College Street view of Ohio University's new Speech Building. Because of the beauty of its interior decoration and its many up-to-the-minute features words and pictures are inadequate for its description. It must be personally inspected to be appreciated.

From the Editor's Desk . . .

WE WONDER if readers of The Alumnus take note of the times the name of President John C. Baker appears in reports of local group meetings or other alumni affairs.

If so, they should be highly gratified and pleased, for the president's participation in these affairs is a result of keen interest in them and a desire to see them succeed, and not because of a lack of other things to do.

President Baker likes people—and he likes Ohio University alumni. His office and his home are always open to them. He seeks them out in his travels. His interest in us as individuals is sincere, but he is also interested in us as an organized group and in our potentialities for service to our alma mater.

Early and late President Baker works for Ohio University to the end that it may some day, and soon, become the "best small university in the country." He gives unsparingly of his time and energy, but he believes that alumni can and should help.

We all want to see our university find its place in the sun. We should, at least, for as the name and reputation of the school become known in ever enlarging circles, so is our pride in Alma Mater increased and the value of our diplomas enhanced.

In the new and re-vitalized alumni program that is currently being evolved we can all find parts to play. We have known the president, at the request of chapter officers, to travel entirely across the state to address an alumni gathering when any sort of regard for health and strength would have forced him to decline the invitation. We have known alumni who didn't even travel across town to attend the meeting.

The University has had some outstanding presidents, men who have made notable contributions to its progress and welfare, but it is a fact that no one of them, or perhaps all of them together, have taken as much interest in alumni affairs or been as willing to help promote them as has the present incumbent.

AS AN UNDERGRAD at the University, you may have had only the remotest association with dramatic art and speech. But no matter how little you might have been aware of the School of Dramatic Art and Speech in the scheme of things at Ohio University, you as an alumnus can take wholehearted pride in its magnificent new building. You can, should, and will be just as proud as any of the hundreds of alumni of that School. The University's latest completed building is the finest of its kind in the country and certainly must stir universal pride among Ohio University alumni.

Indeed, according to members of the dramatic art and speech faculty, speech and theater education people all over the state are thinking of it as "our building." The building, a reflection of progressive and farsighted thinking on the part of many persons and intended to improve the educational offerings of Ohio University, does belong to the community in the broadest sense of the word.

WITH REGRETTABLE regularity, it has been necessary to note the deaths of teachers and administrators of the University over the past few months.

Prof. T. N. Hoover, retired as emeritus professor of history since 1947, had served the University actively for 39 years. He was a scholar in his field and an extremely effective teacher. In addition, his work as University historian was a unique contribution. As an Ohio University figure, Tommy Hoover cannot be replaced.

Dr. H. Hewell Roseberry had been a member of the University faculty only a third as long as Professor Hoover. However, he had established himself as a highly capable teacher and administrator, respected and well-liked by both colleagues and students, and honored by other scholars in his field.

President Baker talks about higher education today and 50 years from now, and lists four 'musts' if universities would remain free

'The Present and . . . American Universities in 2000'

UNIVERSITIES MUST meet present day demands or 50 years hence they will be teaching the "party line," whatever it may happen to be, and the Dark Ages, no matter how lush, will again engulf us," declared President Baker in the opening convocation of the current school year.

Speaking on the subject, "The Present and American Universities in 2000," the president said "in 1951 the world is deciding not only the kind of universities for the year 2000, but also the type of government which should predominate at that time."

The lines are clearly drawn—a free society versus a highly-centralized, tyrannical state. Dr. Baker told his Alumni Memorial Auditorium audience of faculty and students.

Four Basic Ideas

To meet present day demands and keep universities free, the president gave four "important basic ideas which must be emphasized in our thinking in our universities." He said (1) universities must teach, and students must gain, personal integrity; (2) they must develop emotional stability among their students; (3) they must develop an interest in politics and government as careers and a personal concern in good government; (4) universities must develop among students a capacity for intellectual growth.

The president said certain significant changes have been appearing in European universities during the last century as well as certain weaknesses in present-day higher education in this country, which "may well forecast our future."

"In the past 50 years European and other foreign universities have come more and more under political control and play a vastly different role from what they did four centuries ago: in medieval times they had the independence and freedom which gave both American and European universities much of their strength and influence in the modern world," stated Dr. Baker.

He warned that this political control in Europe, "already discernible in America," may sweep us a long way from what past generations of teachers conceived free universities to be. Dr. Baker said new beliefs of grave significance concerning universities as we know them are publicly being accepted.

Concerning the first of the "four basic ideas that must be emphasized," he declared that "one can truthfully center our entire moral world about a broad conception of integrity." He called integrity synonymous with morality, freedom from corruption, loyalty, truth, justice, and wisdom, "and many would add," said the president, "deep religious conviction."

He continued: "Integrity personified refers to a man of unquestioned character. For centuries it has been 'the thread that runs so true' through all education. It is only right that a higher level of morality and honesty is expected from college-trained individuals than from others, and there can be little criticism of this."

President Baker quoted the statement from the Ordinance of 1787, in which Ohio University has its roots, that says: "Religion, morality, and knowledge being necessary to good government and the happiness of mankind, education and its means shall forever be encouraged."

He pointed out: "This rightly applies not only to colleges but to education at all levels. Today students and faculty dare not forget that integrity, truth, morality are our business."

Our country is ripe for the teaching of integrity, and it dare not long be delayed, said Dr. Baker.

"Integrity is a basic virtue in any democratic society," said the president. "Order and happiness exist in our free world only because of integrity and loyalty, not because of the 'party line,' fear, dishonesty, and punishment."

Sports Should Teach Integrity

Dr. Baker declared that colleges and universities should teach integrity in all their activities. He cited athletics as an example of an out-side-the-classroom area of teaching, saying that he believed sports should teach integrity. Declaring Ohio University's athletic policies to be sound and "on the table" for examination, he emphasized that "it is unfair to expect any group of students to be better than the principles practiced by their university."

The president called for the development of "emotional stability among our students—our future leaders." He defined emotional stability as "loyalty, courage, hope, steadiness in a crisis, good judgment, and sound moral values."

"It is what . . . great leaders had in emergencies. It is like the key strand in the great cable that carries the bridge. Its weakness leads to failure of the entire structure," said Dr. Baker.

The lack of emotional stability is in evidence on all sides, he said, listing "confusion in high places, lack of respect for others, 'cultural vigilantism,' treason, and willingness to believe any wild rumor about anyone or any group." He called this lack of emotional stability "so prevalent that it can be described as a characteristic of our world."

"University education, unfortunately, has not been noted for developing great emotional stability, an absolute essential for college graduates in a chaotic world," said the president.

He cited Dr. Klaus E. Fuchs, "a university graduate from a religious home," as a tragic example of the lack of emotional stability. He said Fuchs indicates the danger which a highly educated but immature and unbalanced person can be to a free world.

"Our emotional instability and the immaturity of our thinking as a nation are revealed by our failure to keep in perspective our own responsibilities concerning national and international problems," the president declared.

Blame Others for Ills

He said because we are confused we blame others—the Communists—for our ills. He asserted that when we blame the Communists we forget our own mistakes and those issues which we still would face, "even if every Communist left our country."

President Baker asserted that "we must develop a burning interest in our representative form of government and a personal concern in good government."

He listed as evidence of this need the Kefauver report, conditions of local politics in many cities and towns, the political cynicism so prevalent, and the few college men and women who are willing to run for public office. He revealed that among the some 5500 Ohio University graduates of the past five years 70 percent expressed, through the bureau of appointments, job preferences, but that not one of these almost 4000 graduates mentioned active politics as a career.

Although doubting that this gave "a true picture," the president said it does show clearly that universities create too

Council of the Alumni Association Holds Annual Meeting on the Campus

MEETING ON THE CAMPUS
October 26, the Council of the Ohio University Alumni Association named association officers for the coming year, ratified a new constitution, and heard President Baker give an up-to-the-minute and frank review of the University's problems and plans. With their wives, members of the council which is made of the presidents of local alumni chapters plus four members-at-large, were guests of the University for the Homecoming weekend.

Carr Liggett, '16, Cleveland is the new association president. He succeeds Grosvenor S. McKee, '16, Meadville, Pa. Elected vice presidents for the coming year were Edward B. Wright, '42, Cincinnati, and Mrs. Earl O. Wright (Alice Edwards, '27), Akron. They succeed Willis H. Edmund, '28, Akron, and Elizabeth J. Herbert, '22, Cleveland. Clark E. Williams, '21, was re-elected secretary, and William Fenzel, '18, was re-elected treasurer. P. F. Good, '26, Athens, and Clifford Hughes, '33, Ashtabula, were named to the executive committee.

The Rev. Don D. Tullis, '98, a former president of the Ohio University Alumni Association, gave the invocation preceding the dinner and meeting.

The new constitution, which replaces the one adopted more than 40 years ago, will be published in full in the next issue of the Alumnus. Pictures of the new officers also will appear in the next issue.

President Baker told the 30 council members and association officials that the greatest single problem of the University is "how are we going to be known for what we are in 1951 and in 1954, the Sesquicentennial Year?"

"But," said the president, "if that is our greatest problem, we have no worries. For Ohio University has more than 25,000 friends, her alumni, who, if they speak, can solve this problem."

Dr. Baker cited the role of publications in telling the story of Ohio University, but he emphasized that there is no substitute for satisfied students and loyal alumni as public relations media.

He told the council "the greatest asset of Harvard University is not its $270,000,000 endowment, but a large group of graduates and friends such as you who are loyal to their alma mater."

Dr. Baker predicted that competition among colleges would increase over the next few years, which means that loyal alumni will be needed by all institutions.

He said Ohio University alumni should be proud of the academic program at their University in all areas. As "one example among many," he cited Ohio University's pre-medical program and pointed out that in recent years the great majority of our pre-medicines were admitted to the leading medical colleges.

President Baker said that to serve Ohio properly as an institution of higher learning, our University should draw students not only from southeastern Ohio but from all parts of Ohio, other states, and foreign nations as well.

"Students enroll in Ohio University because of what we have to offer," declared the president. "We must have a University noted for the quality of its educational program." He referred to the continuing review of the curriculum, the emphasis on better teaching, and the constant search for able young instructors as evidence that the University is maintaining quality.

Finally, he stressed emphatically the great challenge faced by trustees, faculty, and students to keep the good name of the University.

Dr. Baker thanked the council members for their past services and asked for continued interest in their University. He also expressed the hope that more alumni would visit Athens to see their University today. For, he said, complete appreciation of what the University is today can come only through a visit.

Council members and their wives who attended, as guests of the University, were:

Sam Alfred, '26x, and Mrs. Alfred, Ashtabula; Robert J. Anderson, '40, and Mrs. Anderson (Marjorie Colvig, '41), Newark; Carroll H. Bachelder, '29, and Mrs. Bachelder, Marion; Ralph W. Betts, '29, and Mrs. Betts, East Liverpool; George Breckenridge, '38, Parkersburg, W. Va.; Clarence A. Covington, '38, and Mrs. Covington (Mary E. Moore, '37), Youngstown; Edwin B. Evans, '47, and Mrs. Evans, Wooster; Arthur R. Fisher, '33x, and Mrs. Fisher, Cleveland; Carl Frederick, '49, and Mrs. Frederick (Elizabeth Smart, '47), Mansfield; Peter F. Good, '26, Athens; George Harvey, '34, and Mrs. Harvey, Dover.

Alfred L. Hess, '49, and Mrs. Hess (Josephine Iannarelli, '44), Lima; Sheridan L. Loyd, '26, and Mrs. Loyd, Mt. Vernon; Roy McClanahan, '32, and Mrs. McClanahan (Clarice Totman, '32), Bellefontaine; Edward L. Merry, '43, and Mrs. Merry, Zanesville; William R. Morris, '42, Columbus; Judge Carlos Riecker, '22, and Mrs. Riecker, McConnelsville; Sheldon Rowland, '33, and Mrs. Rowland (Frances Cluts, '30x), Sandusky; W. A. Smith, '29, and Mrs. Smith (Virginia Koerner, '30x), Pomeroy; A. W. Stoutenburg, '27, Norwalk; Robert J. Taylor, '39, and Mrs. Taylor (Carolyn Fisher, '40), Dayton; John D. Wadley, '32, and Mrs. Wadley, Akron; Erwin J. Ward, '13x, and Mrs. Ward, Toledo; Ed Wright, '38, and Mrs. Wright (Marian Tissot, '37), Cincinnati.

... no substitute for loyal alumni

Besides business, there was all the fun of Homecoming, plus an extra or so: dinner at Howard Hall, 'Twelfth Night' in the new Speech Building Theater, and the president's pre-game luncheon in the stadium dining room

Unable to attend this year's conference were the following group executives and leaders and their wives or husbands: Robert DeFrance, '40, and Mrs. DeFrance, Cambridge; Dr. George DeStefano, '36, and Mrs. DeStefano, Canton; Paul Brickman, '46, and Mrs. Brickman, Chicago; Robert F. Dolan, B.S. Ed. '47, M.S. '50, and Mrs. Dolan (Jean Dow, '48), Chillicothe; Mrs. Fannie Simon Madow, '41, and Dr. Benjamin P. Madow, B.S. '41, M.S. '43, Cleveland.

Norman H. Lewis, '33x, and Mrs. Lewis (Rachel Wells, '31), Coshocton; Dr. Loren L. Pace, '36, and Mrs. Pace, Findlay; Clarence R. Cooper, '26, and Mrs. Cooper, Fremont; Robert M. Betz, '34x, and Mrs. Betz, Gallipolis; John H. Wolfe, Jr., '32, and Mrs. Wolfe, Ironton; C. Paul Stocker, '26, and Mrs. Stocker (Beth Kilpatrick, '28), Lorain; Fred S. Furbee, '48, and Mrs. Furbee (Charlotte Nelson, '47), Marietta.

George E. Lockman, '31, and Mrs. Lockman, Painesville; Supt. H. W. McKelvey, '27, and Mrs. McKelvey, Portsmouth; Carson F. Gossard, '32, and Mrs. Gossard, Springfield; Miss Bette Jo Vaughn, '50x, Steubenville; Vernon W. Deinzer, '41, and Mrs. Deinzer (Janice Nelson, '42), Dayton.

According to the new constitution, the Council of the Alumni Association will hold at least one meeting each year, the meeting or meetings to be held at the University on dates determined by the Executive Committees.

The Council makes such by-laws and regulations as in its judgment are from time to time necessary for the transaction of the business of the Council and the management of affairs of the Association.

Speech and Dramatic Art Building Is Dedicated

University's newest building called best in its field

THE OUTSTANDING building of its type and purpose in the nation was dedicated at the University last month. The near $1,000,000 project contains more and better features for education in speech and dramatic art than are to be found in any other college building.

Ohio University's new Speech and Dramatic Art Building, open for some classes since last spring and now completed except for some equipment installation and adjustment in the radio division, was formally dedicated in conjunction with the fourth annual Ohio Conference for Speech Education held here October 6.

Ohio college and high school teachers here for the conference, as well as the out-of-state guests who were on the speaking program, were unanimous in their praise and approval of the University's newest building.

Located on College Street, the structure is of red brick colonial design and topped by a tower, in keeping with the architectural scheme of the newer buildings on the campus. With a completed basement, it provides four floors of classrooms, offices, and clinic rooms, with the theaters taking the space in the center and right side of the building. In addition, there are radio studios, reception room, a library, dressing rooms, and property rooms.

The building houses four related departments: speech and speech correction, theater, forensics, and radio. This combining of these departments in one building is one of the new structure's distinctive features.

Complete facilities for University-wide service in speech and speech correction are contained in the building. The speech section contains modern and complete clinical facilities. Three purposes are served by the speech clinic: primarily, it trains students who will work in public schools, colleges, hospitals, and clinics; it gives aid in speech improvement to any student needing such help; it operates a children's division which gives assistance to children with speech defects not only in Athens and vicinity but also in a large part of the state.

The main theater of the new building has a seating capacity of 300. With carefully-planned seating, lighting, and acoustics, it represents the latest ideas in small theater designing. The stage-lights and spotlights are controlled by a single operator at an electronic remote control switchboard above and behind the audience. The flexibility of this new departure in stage lighting control is its feature. With virtually any combination of lighting possible and with the system able to accommodate the needs of any play, the best of training in this phase of the theater is provided students.

Separated from the principal theater by a soundproof curtain is a rehearsal theater with a seating capacity of 62. An intercommunication system connects the box office, stage manager, dressing rooms, and director's post in the main theater.

Auxiliary features include a reception room off the lobby and a traditional backstage "social room" for theater personnel.

An auditorium for training in forensic speaking is located on the third floor and has a seating capacity of 75. This department offers debate for both men and women, oratorical contests, and instruction and practice in extemporaneous speaking.

The forensic department provides upon request individual speakers, debate groups, and discussion leaders for public meetings.

The University's radio stations, WOUI-FM and WOUI-AM have their studios and control and equipment rooms in the basement of the building. While WOUI-AM is a "wired wireless" station carrying programs only to the buildings on the campus, WOUI-FM is an educational frequency modulation station heard within a 15 to 20-mile range of Athens. Both programming and the technical side of broadcasting are handled by student staffs under a faculty director. (More complete story and picture coverage of the radio stations will appear in an early issue of the Alumnus. The Editor)

THE UNIVERSITY'S Army and Air Force ROTC units held their first annual joint Open House October 26 and 27, as part of the Homecoming Weekend program.

Invitations to the affair in Carnegie Hall were sent to parents of all ROTC students and to faculty members, with other students and Athens area residents also invited.

The Army unit displayed instructional material, cold weather equipment, and training aids, and showed four movies on Army activities, including a late film on the Korean War.

The Air Force display featured model equipment from the Wright-Patterson Flight Museum, including a model of the first Wright plane, late type personal flying equipment, visual training aids, and four movies related to air activities. The display also included photographs and water colors of nearly every type of plane manufactured in this country.

SIX STUDENTS are currently enrolled in the University's honors work program. The students and their fields are: Satish Kumar Arora, Franco's Spain in international relations; Robert W. Jones, the influence of geopolitical factors on the national policies of 20th Century Germany; Igor Schwabe, hospital design for Basra, Iraq; Albert C. Gubitz, Jr., restraint of trade in the United States; Gene P. Chufar, a series of lectures and reports designed to inform the lay public about the work of speech education; and H. Philip Peterson, designing the circuits for the elementary digital computer, known as "Simple Simon," and which was referred to in the book Giant Brains.

FIFTEEN EXHIBITS were scheduled for the University Art Gallery, located in the Edwin Watts Chubb Library, for the current academic year. All exhibits are open to the public.

From October 1 to 15, the Ohio Printmakers took over the gallery for their 24th annual exhibit, showing contributions by Ohio artists and artists who have lived in Ohio. Ending October 30 was a photography exhibit showing derivations in color. Work done by students makes up the exhibit from November 1 to 20.

Kappa Alpha Mu, national honor organization for students in photography, will conduct two exhibits of the work of its members during December. Work of fine arts students will be displayed from January 2 to 22. For the remainder of that month and the first half of February an exhibit of plastics for the home is scheduled. Completing the February schedule will be displays of student work.

For the first week of March, "200 Years of Textile Designs" is the exhibit. Beginning March 6 and ending the 15th will be the eighth annual show of "News Pictures of the Year." Student shows will complete the month.

Serigraphs from the National Serigraph Society of New York will be shown during all of April. A student photography show is scheduled for the first half of May, and the exhibit season will end with a final student show from June 1 to 15.

MORE THAN 2000 Southeastern Ohio teachers were on the campus the Thursday and Friday preceding Homecoming for the 56th Annual Southeastern Ohio Education Association meeting. The group included many alumni who remained for Homecoming.

Principal speaker at this year's meeting was John L. Bracken, superintendent of schools at Clayton, Missouri. The general theme of the meeting was "A Free System of Education, the Foundation for Individual Freedom."

Ohio University faculty members and administrative officials who participated included Dr. George J. Kabat, dean of the College of Education, who gave the welcoming address; Dr. Einar Hansen, professor of elementary education, who addressed the sectional meeting of the elementary school principals; and Dr. George W. Starcher, '26, dean of the College of Arts and Sciences, who addressed the sectional meeting of mathematics teachers. Dr. Irma Voigt, dean emerita of women, spoke at the Friday morning general meeting.

Velva Brashares, B.S. '34, M.S. '49, presided at the meeting as president of the association.

AN OHIO UNIVERSITY chapter of Alpha Kappa Lambda was installed last month. The local chapter has been operating as Beta Sigma for the past two years.

The Sunday installation ceremonies were preceded by a marathon from Columbus Saturday by members of the Ohio State University chapter of the fraternity carrying the charter for the new group.

THIS YEAR'S Homecoming Queen was Mary Lou Young, of Steubenville, a senior in the College of Education and Howard Hall's representative for the crown. Her attendants were Fran McCoppin, of Leesburg, a College of Education junior, and Sophomore Phyllis Orr, of Frankfort, also a future teacher. Miss McCoppin represented Sigma Kappa and Miss Orr was Bryan Hall entrant among the 14 candidates.

SIXTY STUDENTS from abroad were guests at the annual president's reception for them in the Lounge of Lindley Hall. Receiving the guests were President Baker and Dr. Victor Whitehouse, advisor for foreign students.

At the serving table were Mrs. Ned Bixler, '26, acting dean of women; Dr. Mary Noss, professor of French; Mrs. Paul H. Black, wife of Professor Black; and Mrs. Roger Connor, '35.

Invited to meet the guests were University administrative officials and their wives and leaders of student organizations.

Twenty-nine foreign countries are represented at the University this year. The largest delegation, seven, is from Hawaii.

A COLLECTION of volcanic specimens from the Kilauea crater of Mona Loa volcano in Hawaii has been added to the University's Department of Geology.

The stones and minerals were presented by M-Sgt. Paul J. Schmitt, instructor in flight operations in the Department of Air Science and Tactics. Sergeant Schmitt served in Hawaii from 1934 to 1937.

An active volcano, Mona Loa is seldom visited, since the possibility of unexpected eruption is great.

The sergeant's collection will be used in departmental teaching.

MRS. HELEN BANTA, home economist with the Frigidaire Corporation, was the guest of the School of Home Economics last month. While here, she conducted classes on Time and Motion Studies as they relate to efficient management in the home.

SOME 35 ASTRONOMERS from Ohio, Indiana, Michigan, Pennsylvania, and Kentucky were guests of the University for a one-day meeting last month.

Speakers included Prof. James Cuffey and Prof. Henry Irwin, both from the University of Indiana. Dean George W. Starcher, '26, of the College of Arts and Sciences, was a speaker at the Lindley Hall dinner given for the astronomers. The day's schedule was concluded with an inspection of the University's new ten-inch refracting telescope.

PHILIP HOFER, lecturer on fine arts at Harvard University and curator of printing and graphic arts in the Harvard College Library, recently gave a lecture on "Four Modern French Bestiaries" at Ohio University. His talk was supplemented by specimens and slides made under his direction to illustrate his subject.

From the President's Office

GENERAL OBJECTIVES

Occasionally I am asked, "What is the general thinking back of present-day plans at Ohio University?" This is a good question, and the answer should not only make those ideas a matter of record but also indicate the day-to-day policies of the various colleges, divisions, schools, and departments of the University.

Here are a few of the "general ideas" behind the efforts of trustees, faculty, and administration to make your University a better university:

(1) We attempt to give quality education in all areas in which instruction is offered. This rightly implies a constant review of curricula, teaching methods, physical facilities, and personnel.

(2) We strive in all of our many activities—from classroom and athletics to social customs—to develop a good name for Ohio University. A good reputation grows out of the daily experiences of our students and their testimony.

(3) We emphasize the importance of broad fundamental courses so those students attending Ohio University may enter on their life's work with real capacity for self-education. There are no finalities in university education—only a capacity for growth.

(4) We invite and urge students to participate in the administration and planning of the University. In this way, students can learn by first-hand experience how to assume responsibility in a democratic society.

(5) We attempt to keep our education personal. This is achieved by means of instructional methods, advising, and close faculty-student relationships.

(6) We emphasize the grave significance of personal integrity and try to teach it. For centuries this has been "the thread that runs so true" through all education.

(7) We teach and stress, both in classes and in many University activities, the importance of good citizenship.

(8) We welcome at all times visits, criticisms, and help from our alumni and other friends.

To explain the above-mentioned and other policies adequately, however, is impossible in this limited space. Moreover, the complete story should indicate how these policies work and should include the following special activities and many others: the importance of our University College, the broad summer program of the Fine Arts College, the Center for Educational Service operated by the College of Education, new courses in the College of Arts and Sciences, new core curriculum in the Home Economics Department, special European trips for language students, and our research program.

Informing you of all these developments is a long-term program—indeed, an unending task. This information we hope will reach you through students, The Alumnus, the Green and White, departmental pamphlets and bulletins, alumni groups meeting with representatives from the University, and through your visits to the campus. Do come to see us. We want you to know your University.

Undergrad Impressions

By Laurie Schultz, '52

The rapid tempo of college life graphically illustrated as five weeks of semester already faded away. Common campus greeting now is "Only so-many more days 'til Thanksgiving."

Six weeks grades rapidly approaching, so professors break out with a rash of tests and students with a rash of complaints.

With tests and quizzes making life difficult, age-old debate over cheating and honor codes flares up, fanned by national scandals. Students discuss in bull sessions, classrooms, and on editorial page of OU Post. Many suggestions, but no solutions.

World Series over for some time, but impressions still sharp. Crowds outside every TV appliance store and inside every bar and grill to watch telecast.

Campus dotted with groups of students and professors huddled around portable radios. Classes conducted with one ear to the lesson and other tuned to sudden cheers emanating from outside, or from nearby rooms lucky enough to have a radio.

Sentiment on side of Giants, but after second game betting odds favored consistent Yanks.

Steps of Memorial Auditorium and all paths enroute jammed as first convo is held. Those with less patriotism but more hunger hurry uptown for late breakfast.

Unfortunately no one lining steps or paths prior to Friday pep rallies. Again many people up in arms over situation. In answer individual groups get together at next football game and compete for unofficial title of best noisemaker. Re-sults ragged, but ear splitting.

No spirit lacking during Miami migration, but victory was. First defeat for Bobcats, 7-0, hard to take in last 40 seconds of game.

Back on victory trail with 28-27 thriller over Kent at Homecoming. Saturday morning float parade best in years. Hardest hit on campus, besides gridders, were fraternity pledges who slaved 'til wee hours working on floats.

Athens weather truly amazing. Only one day of rain recently. (Now I'll get out my umbrella.) Campus swathed in autumnal foliage. Paths smothered with multi-colored leaves as caretakers sweep and rake desperately. Students kick through crackling piles with gay abandon.

Arriving with fall weather are Halloween parties and hayrides — modern style — tractors, not horses. One unfortunate group of 40 after 10 minutes

Ripple of interest as Beta Sigma goes national. Torch carried from Columbus to Athens by runners from Purdue and Ohio State chapters of Alpha Kappa Lambda highlights ceremony.

Wherever construction work goes on, crowds gather to watch in fascination. A trait as American as apple pie. Students and townspeople no different, as perpetual hanger-on observe first steps in erection of new Student Center Building. Students wait 'til last minute, then dash for class as bell rings.

Noise from construction finds its way into every classroom. Instructors shout in attempt to overcome difficult competition, while students' eyes wander window-ward.

Culture comes to campus with Albeni Quartet recital and University Theatre's "Twelfth Night." "Newspaper Ball" and "Homecoming Dance" big social events to date. Life Magazine invited to Newspaper Ball, but failed to show despite Life decoration motif.

Passers-by and campus cop gaze in wonder as male student, pants bloused plus-4 style, strides nonchalantly toward Cutler Hall. Despite heckling, completes tour of Green and demands payment of bet, one extra-large, double-thick chocolate milkshake.

PAUL T. NORTON, vice president of the Kilbourne and Jacobs Manufacturing Company, Columbus, was the speaker at the first convocation of the Engineers Club this year. The industrialist was professor of industrial engineering for several years at Virginia Polytechnic Institute and has contributed a book and other literature to his field.

Last year's Homecoming story was headed "Everything Except A Football Victory." This Year its' . . .

Everything--Including A Football Victory

A FOOTBALL VICTORY, a happy crowd, and perfect weather combined to make the 1951 Homecoming as satisfying as any one of its 26 predecessors. The victory over Kent was close, 28-27, but it counted, and was welcomed after several winless Homecomings.

The weekend more or less officially opened Friday evening with the traditional pep rally and naming of the queen and her court. President and Mrs. Baker and Alumni President Grosvenor S. McKee, '16, joined the students for the march from Alumni Memorial Auditorium to the baseball field for the bonfire, talks, and cheers.

Elsewhere, the Alumni Council was having its annual dinner and meeting, and University Theater was presenting "Twelfth Night."

But even before the evening events, the ROTC had welcomed Homecomers to its first annual open house, an event planned for Friday and Saturday of the Homecoming Weekend.

Saturday morning's Homecoming Parade contained 31 floats and six bands. Float winners were: men's first, Beta Theta Pi; men's second, Acacia; men's honorable mention, Engineers. Women's first, Alpha Delta Pi; second Zeta Tau Alpha; honorable mention, Alpha Gamma Delta.

Delta Tau Delta won first prize for house decorations and Theta Chi second.

The University Marching Band led the parade, while interspersed through the long line of floats were the high school bands of Athens, The Plains, Chauncey-Dover, Albany, and Union Furnace.

Beta Theta Pi's prize-winning float depicted a giant hand writing "Victory," while on the side of the float were the words "It Shall Be Written." Acacia's second-best was a Chinese setting, with Confucius prophesying that "Kent No Have Chinaman's Chance." The float was pulled by Acacians garbed as coolies. The Engineers' entry was an adding machine, with the machine's keys spelling out "Ohio Beat Kent." The slogan was "Figured to Win," and the machine tabulated a predicted score of the game.

The women's first place float of Alpha Delta Pi carried the theme of "Pattern for Victory." Zeta Tau Alpha's runnerup carried a maternity theme. Beneath the announcement "We're Expecting" hovered a stork with Kent State ready to be added to the nursery containing previous Bobcat triumphs. Alpha Gamma Delta won honorable mention for its "No Clowning, OU's Tops," showing a giant clown leaning over a top.

Delta Tau Delta's cup-capturing house decoration was a stage with a chorus line of seven cancan dancers. All of the "dancing girls" moved and each carried one letter of the word victory, each letter on a background formed by a block O. Theta Chi's second place decoration was a Kent State player trying to get past the Pearly Gates, but luck was against him. The sign "No Room for the Doomed" was displayed, and the player ended in a burning pit.

Observers generally agreed that this year's judges had a difficult job. Judges were Doris Sponseller, '29, head of secretarial studies, Robert L. Patrick, assistant professor of business law, and Harper C. Pendry, executive secretary of the Athens Board of Trade.

The Marching Band, under the direction of Prof. Charles Minelli, carried out the Homecoming theme with a show depicting "A Half Century Review of Music," something for each generation of alums since 1900. Entering the field to the strains of "Auld Lang Syne," the band quickly went into the form of a 1900 vintage bicycle and changed their tune to "Merrily We Roll Along." Next came the Roaring Twenties, with Prohibition, bathtub gin, and the charleston, to the tunes of "How Dry I Am" and "Charleston."

The boom of the late Twenties was depicted by the forming of a large dollar sign and the playing of "I'm in the Money," but with

Better Adjusted Students and Graduates

An inside look at the dorm counseling program, how it works, the type of personnel chosen for this important job, and some of its results

By Laurie Schultz, '52

REMEMBER YOUR first few weeks at college? If you were like most new students there were times when you were discouraged enough to pack up and go home. Perhaps your grades were bad, or you were having trouble adjusting to the tempo of college life, or maybe you were terribly homesick.

Ohio University has long recognized the difficulties that beset new students. Back in 1933 a Co-op Plan was founded at OU which enabled men to work for their room and board in University-controlled houses. As a part of this plan, managers and proctors were appointed to supervise each housing unit.

The program has progressed far since its inception 18 years ago. Today there are 39 dormitory counselors, divided between Scott Quadrangle and the East Green dorms.

The counselors' work in the dormitories is partially one of seeing that rules are upheld, keeping records for the administrators, and acting as a counselor or solver of problems for the men.

What manner of men are these counselors who play such an important part in the lives of the new students? The typical dorm counselor is an upperclassman, above average in his studies and the possessor of good study habits. He is active in several extra-curricular affairs, so he is well able to advise his counselees along such lines. Yet he is not so entangled in outside affairs that he is not available for help at any time. Usually the counselor has had past experience in leading men, perhaps in a summer camp or in the army.

Each semester applications are accepted by the Office of the Dean of Men for the position for the following semester. This form calls for detailed information from the applicant.

Interviews are arranged with members of the Dean of Mens' staff. These interviews are conducted so that a good idea of the prospective counselor's qualifications is obtained. The interviewee is asked what he would do if certain hypothetical cases arose and his judgement is seriously weighed.

Final selections are made largely on the basis of scholarship, leadership, extra-curricular activities, and the ability to get along with other students. There are usually a large number applying for the positions, which pay $200 per year, so that those finally chosen have to be well qualified.

The first duty of a newly chosen counselor is to write letters to all the new students, freshmen and transfers, who will be living in his unit the next semester. These letters are simple, but cordial and help give the freshman a feeling that someone besides himself and his parents is interested in his attending Ohio University.

All the counselors return to Athens several days early to attend the counselors workshop. This lasts two days and meets from 8 a.m. to 4 p.m. each day. Its purpose is to acquaint the counselors with the fine points of their jobs.

One of the most important aspects discussed is that of the actual counseling. Obviously the counselors are not skilled enough to solve deep-seated emotional and personality problems. So they are instructed in some of the more basic techniques by members of the psychology and human relations department, as well as by the Dean of Mens' staff and other University officials.

Though not expected to be practicing psychiatrists after this conference, counselors do have one distinct advantage. That is their day-by-day relationship with their counselees. They can be the first to spot any trouble and move quickly to counteract the situation.

If the counselor cannot handle the problem himself, he always knows whom to contact so that help may be obtained. This is one of the cardinal rules for counseling.

Few specific rules or principles are given the counselors. They were chosen because it was believed they would be able to cope with any problem that might arise.

When the freshman and other students begin arriving they are met by their counselor. He fills out their room and board bills, and then shows them to their rooms. All rules and regulations are explained and the new student begins to get the idea, "Maybe this isn't such a bewildering place after all."

Questions and problems arise thick and fast during Freshman Week and registration. Gradually the situation eases as the new students orient themselves during the first few weeks of the semester.

Then the counselor's duties become more or less patterned. There are the weekly counselors meetings with the most important, the rapport between counselor and his men resident manager of the dorms (Edward Sudnick, '50, at Scott Quadrangle and Al Lindholm, '51, at East Green.) Here latest developments are noted and problems discussed.

Also there are the floor meetings, usually weekly, called by the individual counselors. News is passed on to the men and any group problems are talked over.

The counselor has other duties, taking meal counts, checking for any repairs that might be necessary, enforcing quiet hours (a tough job), and filling out reports on the men.

But most important is the rapport established between the counselor and his men. They soon realize that he is there to help them, not serve as a policeman only. He becomes a true buddy, someone with whom problems can be discussed in a friendly manner, without the fear that goes with formal appointments with advisers, deans, and the like. Also the student is more apt to see the proper officials if his counselor so advises than he would otherwise.

That the program is achieving definite results can be seen from some of the actual cases. For instance, there was the boy who was so homesick and shy that he would not even leave his room to eat.

So his counselor made it a point to drop in a few times each day. He discreetly mentioned some of the other fellows from the boy's home town who were attending OU. The counselor looked up some of these other students and asked them to join him, one at a time, in his visits to the homesick boy. It wasn't too long before the counselee had progressed to a point where he was taking part in the daily dorm bull sessions. His adjustment progressed rapidly thereafter.

Then there was the case of the student whose roommate had gone home for the weekend. He was suddenly stricken with appendicitis and was either too sick or too frightened to seek help. His counselor happened to drop in for a chat, saw the situation, and quickly summoned an ambulance from the Health Center. An operation followed and the boy soon recovered.

More serious was the boy who was definitely on his way to becoming a schizophreniac. The counselor by his association with the boy recognized that something was wrong and reported it to the Dean of Men's Office. A faculty psychologist took over and the patient soon recovered.

There are many such cases that could be cited to prove the worth of the counseling program. Some of the cases are serious, some petty, but all, when treated, add up to better adjusted students and graduates.

Engineering Is Accredited

THE ENGINEERS COUNCIL for Professional Development has accredited Ohio University in the fields of architectural, civil, electrical, and mechanical engineering. The Council, the official accrediting body for all colleges of engineering, is composed of the leading engineering societies in the United States and Canada. It includes the National Council of State Boards of Engineering Examiners and the American Society of Engineering Education.

A Council committee composed of Dean Huber O. Croft, of the University of Missouri, Dean Orvid W. Eshbach, of Northwestern University, and Prof. L. O. Stewart, of Iowa State College, inspected the engineering departments and facilities last spring. The committee studied the adequacy of the engineering staff and physical facilities and the effectiveness of the staff in instruction and research.

Announcement of the accreditations was made during a meeting of the OU Engineers Club in the hydraulics lab of the new Engineering Building attended by more than 100 student members and the engineering faculty.

Speakers included President Baker, Dean E. J. Taylor, of the College of Applied Science, and Gordon K. Bush, '24, representing the University board of trustees.

The club members approved a resolution commending Dr. Edward F. Wilsey, professor of civil engineering, who is critically ill, for his active part in the work leading up to the accreditations.

Chairmen of the accredited departments are: Dr. D. B. Green, electrical engineering; Prof. Paul H. Black, mechanical engineering; and Prof. E. H. Gaylord, civil engineering and architectural engineering. All four fields are in the College of Applied Science, under Dean Taylor, who joined the Ohio University administrative staff four years ago.

The new Engineering Building was occupied at the start of the fall semester, 1949. Containing modern laboratories and other facilities, it is constructed to permit expansion to double its present size with the addition of a T-shaped unit like the present structure.

College of Education's New Field Experience Program for Seniors Is First in Ohio

A FIELD EXPERIENCE program has been adopted as a part of the teacher training curriculum at the University.

No other Ohio college offers a similar program of field training during the opening weeks of various schools, when many adjustments must be made in the curriculum, teaching programs and student-teacher relationships, according to Dr. George Kabat, dean of the College of Education.

More than 200 elementary and secondary education students have already participated in the field training, which was inaugurated in the fall of 1950 and designed to give the prospective teacher experience with the problems connected with the school system where he might like to teach later.

Dr. George A. Beauchamp, director of elementary education, supervised the first program in the fall of 1950 on the elementary school level. Because of the widespread success of that program, it was broadened this fall to include students preparing for high school teaching, with Prof. Carl H. Roberts, '27, director of secondary student teaching, as supervisor.

Each student makes his own arrangements with the school system of his choice and takes his field experience during the first two or three weeks of the school year, just before starting his senior year at the University. He helps in organizing classes, attends staff meetings, observes methods, teaches some classes, and participates in all phases of school opening activities.

The new field training program is in addition to the supervised student teaching offered throughout the school year in grade and high schools in Athens and the nearby area.

Death Claims Professors Hoover, Roseberry

THE DEATHS of a professor emeritus of history and an active professor of physics occurred recently within a few days of each other. Emeritus Prof. T. N. Hoover, '05, M. Ped. '06, died November 3. Dr. H. Hewell Roseberry, chairman of the Department of Physics died October 26.

Thomas Nathanael Hoover, professor of history at Ohio University for 39 years and professor emeritus since his retirement in 1947, died in Sheltering Arms Hospital as a result of a cerebral hemorrhage.

The veteran educator was born in Jackson, Ohio, Dec. 9, 1876, the son of Nathanael and Mary Kelly Hoover.

He graduated from Jackson High School in 1896, taught in rural and village schools in Jackson and Pike counties for four years, and in 1900 enrolled in Ohio University. During a one-year interval, 1903-04, he taught in the high school at Mansfield. Returning to Ohio University, he completed work for the Bachelor of Pedagogy degree in 1905, and in 1906 he was awarded a Master of Pedagogy degree. During the latter year he was an assistant to the late Dr. B. O. Higley in the department of history.

The next two years were spent at Harvard University, where he was a student of Professors Albert Bushnell Hart and Edward Channing. He received the degree of Master of Arts from Harvard in 1907 and continued another year, working on a Ph.D. He came to the Ohio University faculty as professor of history in 1908. During the summer sessions of 1947 and 1948 he taught at the University of Montana.

Well known for his tenor voice, Professor Hoover was a member of the Ohio University Glee Club and Male Quartet and a member of the Harvard Glee Club. He was a member of the Athens Presbyterian Church and for many years director of its choir.

A recognized authority on political government, Professor Hoover had contributed to the American Yearbook since 1927, preparing the section on "Elections." He was also a contributor to the "Cyclopedia of American Government." As university historian he had recently completed a "History of Ohio University."

Professor Hoover was a member of a number of professional societies and of Delta Tau Delta social fraternity. He was a member of the advisory committee to the Ohio Commission for the Northwest Territory celebration in 1938 and was chairman of the McGuffey Centennial celebration at Ohio University in 1939. He is a former president of the Athens City-County Board of Health, a former secretary and director of the Mutual Home and Savings Association and a charter member of the Athens Kiwanis Club. He was also a member of the Athens Country Club and the Isaac Walton League. A staunch Republican, he was active in local, district and state politics. He was county chairman of the Citizens Committee for Robert A. Taft in the last general election.

Besides his wife (Ethel Arnold '13x), he is survived by two children and three grandchildren. Thomas N. Hoover, Jr., '33, is personnel wage and salary specialist with the Arabian American Oil Co. in Dhahran, Saudi Arabia, and Mrs. Virginia Hoover Franklin, A.B. '36, A.M. '40, a teacher in the high school at Johnstown.

Dr. H. Hewell Roseberry, 47, chairman of the Department of Physics since March 1, 1950, and a member of the University faculty since 1937, died at his home of a cerebral hemorrhage as he was preparing to leave for a morning class meeting.

Dr. Roseberry, a native of Prescott, Arizona, where he was born Sept. 3, 1904, had been away from his office for several days due to illness.

A graduate of the Malvern, Ark. High School, he earned his Bachelor of Science degree from Davidson College, Davidson, N.C., his master's degree from the University of Chicago, and his doctor's degree from Johns Hopkins University.

He was an instructor in physics at the University of Virginia in 1926-27 while doing graduate work there, spent a year as instructor in physics at Davidson College in 1927-28, held a similar position at the University of Maryland from 1928-36, and was professor of physics at the College of the Ozarks, Clarksville, Ark., in 1936-37.

He joined the Ohio University faculty in 1937 as an assistant professor of physics and engineering, became an associate professor in 1942, professor of physics in 1946, and on March 1, 1950,

PROFESSOR HOOVER

was made chairman of the physics department. He also had served several years as a member of and chairman of the Board of Athletic Control, and for several years was superintendent of the First Presbyterian Church Sunday School.

He also had carried on extensive experimental work in television in the Athens area.

He was a member of several professional societies and had authored many articles for science and other journals.

He is survived by his wife and two daughters.

TWO LITERARY SOCIETIES of the 19th Century, the Philomathean and the Athenian, have received recognition for their contributions to the University with the naming of two rooms in Chubb Library in their honor.

The Philomathean Room is off the main lobby, where the reserve collection was formerly kept. The room now contains a selected list of literature, for course assignments and for general reading.

The Athenian Room is on the ground floor of the library and contains books of history and a permanent display of local and University history materials.

Speaking of Alumni . . .

Was Team 'Doc' for 27 Years

DR. BLAINE R. GOLDSBERRY, '14, prominent Athens physician and for 27 years Ohio University team doctor, still enjoys sitting on the bench with Bobcat gridsters although he no longer ministers to their aches and pains. From the more active status of team physician he has become advisor to Dr. Maytas Relle, a new member of the University Health Service staff, who now holds the title of team physician.

Dr. Goldsberry graduated from the Johns Hopkins Medical School in 1918 and has kept abreast of developments in his professional field through annual attendance of post graduate sessions at Johns Hopkins or elsewhere. Besides the famed Baltimore school he has attended a half dozen or more of the country's leading post graduate schools and hospitals for work in radiology, X-ray, and general medicine.

The Athenian is a member of the county, state, and national medical associations, of the American College of Cardiology, and the Radiological Society of North America.

An ardent sportsman, he hunts and fishes and was at one time a nationally known figure in rifle shooting. While still an undergraduate he was a member of a team representing the State of Ohio in the 1913 International Rifle Matches. Between 1930 and 1936 he again engaged in small-bore rifle competition. He was twice a member of the U. S. team in Dewar Matches in which the 20 best shots in this country were pitted against a similar number from England in matches sponsored by Sir Thomas Dewar.

A participant in varsity sports, he was an end on the 1913 football team and captain of the 1913-14 basketball team.

Dr. Goldsberry is a charter member of Torch and donor of the Goldsberry Cup, which is competed for by men's groups in the annual Torch Sing.

He is a brother of Mrs. Byron D. Blair (Mary Frances Goldsberry, '28), Chillicothe, and J. Russell Goldsberry, '17, 2-yr., Watertown, Mass.

Alumna Is Acting Dean

MRS. NED BIXLER (Janice Battin, '26) is acting dean of women during the current academic year. She is serving in the place of Dr. Leona Wise Felsted, who is in Japan as a member of an American committee to establish counseling and guidance institutes for Japanese universities.

The broadening of Mrs. Bixler's friendly concern and helpful ways to include all women at the University will be applauded by alumnae who lived in Boyd Hall in the past four years, where she was head-of-residence.

Mrs. Bixler was an art supervisor in the Mannington, W. Va., schools after her graduation, but had been out of school work 20 years prior to returning to the University.

She is the widow of Ned Bixler, '27x. Her mother, Mrs. Emma R. Battin, '08, 2-yr., now deceased, was for many years cashier in the Ohio University treasurer's office.

... for PTA, a logical choice

Alumna Is PTA President

MRS. LORIN C. STAATS (Esther Kenney, B.S.Ed. '24, M.A. '48) was elected president of the Ohio Congress of Parents and Teachers at its meeting last month.

Mrs. Staats is the wife of Dr. Lorin C. Staats, '26, professor of dramatic art and speech at Ohio University, and the mother of Lorin C. Staats, Jr., '48.

The new state president of the parents and teachers organization has a varied background in parent-teacher work, dating from 1931 when she was named publicity chairman for the East Side PTA in Athens. Presidencies in elementary, high school, and council units led to chairmanships within the district.

Since 1937 her offices have included Southeast district director, sixth vice president and chairman of home and family life, chairman of character and spiritual education, and first vice president and advisor to councils.

When Mrs. Staats was elected to the last-named position a year ago, a colleague wrote "... combining careers in education and homemaking, she is the logical choice for the position." and she was unopposed for the top post this year.

Being a teacher as well as a mother has given the new president insight into the problems of both parents and teachers. Mrs. Staats was a teacher before her marriage and re-entered the field as a high school social science and speech instructor when the teacher shortage became acute.

Besides Ohio University, she has attended Western Reserve University and the University of Denver. She is a member of education and speech honor societies as well as Phi Mu, Mortar Board, and National Collegiate Players

The Bobcat Sports Review

By Jack Hostutler, '50

WITH FIVE VICTORIES in their first seven games, the 1951 Bobcat footballers need only two victories in their remaining three games to turn in the best OU season's record since 1938.

The Bobcats hold victories over Morris Harvey, Akron, Bowling Green, Western Michigan and Kent State while they have dropped seven point decisions to Miami and Toledo.

Still remaining on the schedule are games with the undefeated Cincinnati Bearcats, Eastern Kentucky and Marshall.

Following their 13 to 0 victory over the Western Michigan Broncos in their first Mid-American Conference game, the Bobcats made it four in a row by dumping the Bowling Green Falcons 28 to 7. Ed Roberts was the offensive star for OU as he scored two touchdowns, one on a 38 yard pass from Quarterback Bill Casto and the other on a one-yard plunge. Dick Fleitz added another score the only time he carried the ball by scampering 49 yards around right end for the td. The other touchdown came with just 30 seconds remaining in the first half as Paul Winemiller plunged over from the one.

In the Migration Day game at Oxford, the Bobcats lost their first game of the season to the Miami University Redskins as All-Ohio halfback John Pont scored the game's only touchdown with only 40 seconds remaining in the game. It was one of the outstanding gridiron classics of the day and everyone was high in praise of both teams for the fine game. The Bobcats were inside the Miami twenty yard line on four occasions, once losing the ball on the one-yard line, only to have penalties, fumbles or the like kill off their scoring chances.

KENT STATE'S Golden Flashes caught the Green and White-men on the rebound and the result was the first OU Homecoming win since 1945 in a real offensive thriller. The final score was 28 to 27, with Bill Bevan's toe providing the margin of victory as he made good on all four extra point attempts while Kent's Don Campbell missed his first extra point of the year after kicking 21 in a row. Bill Haffner, Dick Fleitz, and Ed Roberts were the big ground gainers for the Bobcats while the passing of Larry Lawrence in his first starting assignment at quarterback was impressive. Lawrence completed 7 of 18 pass attempts for 105 yards and several of his tosses helped set up OU scores. Haffner, giving his best running performance since the Morris Harvey game, led the Bobcat scoring with a touchdown run of 17 yards in the first quarter for the first Ohio score and another of 15 yards in the third period for the final OU touchdown. The Bobcats picked up their other two touchdowns in the second period, one on Eddie Roberts plunge over from the one and the other on another break-away run by Fleitz, this time for 52 yards. The Bobcats held a 28 to 13 third period lead but the Kent State offense started to roll in the fourth period and they picked up 14 points, but it fell one point short of a tie.

THE OHIO SQUAD suffered their second defeat of the season at the hands of the University of Toledo Rockets in blizzard-like weather at the Toledo Glass Bowl, 13 to 7. The game was started with the temperature standing at 16 degrees and by half time it had dropped to 10 degrees. The cold itself might not have been so bad but a wet snow that fell throughout the game and a heavy wind made ball handling hazardous. There were 21 fumbles in the game, 11 by the Bobcats, which all seem to come at crucial times. The Rockets racked up a 13 to 0 lead with a touchdown in both the first and second quarters and the Bobcats could manage to get back only one of those. Lou Sawchik intercepted a Toledo pass in the second period and returned it 29 yards to the Rocket 11 yard line, where Larry Lawrence carried it over three plays later. With Bill Bevan out of the game with an injured ankle, Jerry Hannah's attempt for the point was blocked and that was the end of the scoring for the evening. The Bobcats moved the ball to the Toledo two yard line in the fourth quarter only to fumble away their final chance to tie up the game as the Rockets recovered in the end zone for an automatic touchback.

ALTHOUGH THE BASKETBALL season does not open until December 6, Ohio University Coach Jim Snyder has been running 17 men through daily drills since the middle of October in preparation for the season's opener with Marshall College on that date.

Included in the group are seven lettermen from the 1951 squad, including the five top scorers. Other candidates for the squad are two with previous varsity experience, five sophomores up from last year's yearling squad, and three promising freshmen.

Returning lettermen in the group are leading scorer and All-Mid-American Conference guard Glen Hursey, Glenford; Elwood Sparks and Dave Leightenheimer, Portsmouth; Joe Benich, Cleveland; Ralph Readout, Columbus; Jack Betts, East Liverpool; and Tom Haswell, Strasburg.

The remaining men currently practicing are juniors Dan Lechner, Mineral City; and Harold Dougherty, Glenford; sophomores—Jim Betts, East Liverpool; Dick Murphy, Cincinnati; Dick Seiple, Canton; Paul Wanstreet, Clarksburg, W. Va.; and John Capella, Cleveland; freshmen—Scotty Griesheimer, Chillicothe; Ted Cherry, Canal Winchester; Bill Laverty, McArthur.

OHIO UNIVERSITY'S JUNIOR Varsity football squad split even in its first two games, losing to Cincinnati 25 to 0 in the season's opener and downing Bowling Green 28 to 7.

Three games remain on the schedule for the Bobkittens, all to be played within an eight day period. The Jay Vees meet Miami on Friday, Nov. 9; Ohio Wesleyan on Monday, Nov. 11, and

Marshall on Friday, Nov. 16. The three games in such a short period were made necessary when Ohio Wesleyan requested a game with the Bobkittens and with all weekend dates full, Coach Frank Richey consented to meet them in the Monday contest. The Wesleyan game is the only one of the three that will not be played on the home field.

Top player for the Jay Vees in their first two games was Charlie Skipton, a sophomore from Marietta. He plays a halfback position and in both games was the leading ground-gainer for the Bobkittens. Skipton, a transfer from Miami is ineligible for varsity competition this year, but he had a great deal of promise and should prove his value in the next few years. Against Bowling Green, he carried the ball only five times but racked up 104 yards, including touchdown runs of 52 and 66 yards.

A SHAPELY, 108-POUND halfback from Cleveland Heights led the Pi Beta Phi sorority to a second straight victory over the Alpha Xi Deltas in the fifth annual Powder Bowl game, 12 to 0.

Red-haired Mary Ann Hills skirted end for 83 yards and a touchdown the first time the Pi Phis had the ball. In the third quarter she snared a pass from Ann Hammerle of Hamilton and danced 40 yards for the second score. There was no tackling but much hard blocking in the touch football game. The proceeds, about $700 from an estimated 2500 spectators, went to the Damon Runyon Cancer Fund. Plenty of passes were tried. Alpha Xi's Dolores Martenchik, from Lorain, completed five out of 14 attempts for 67 yards. The delicate foot of Joy Mahan, Dayton Pi Phi, punted the ball three times for a total of 109 yards. Bud Rose and Norrie Hartshorne tried to coach the winners, and Ed Ferris and John Dukawich the losers, but the quarterbacks kept changing their minds. It was the Pi Phis' second Powder Bowl victory over the Alpha Xis. The first three games were ties. The Pi Phis won last year, 31-0.

COACH JIM JOHNSON'S Cross Country squad is finding the going tough this year. Vastly inexperienced with only one man back from last year's squad, the distance men have dropped four meets while winning only one. Strangely enough the victory was over Kent State, a team, that had beaten them only a week earlier.

The cross country squad lost their season's opener to Miami 50 to 15, one of the state's finest distance squad. In a double-dual meet, the Bobcats lost to Cincinnati 42 to 20 and Kent 30 to 25, on the home course. In their last outing, another double-dual meet at Bowling Green, the Ohio harriers bowed to Bowling Green 50 to 15 and edged Kent 25 to 32.

REUNION SCHEDULED

A reunion of the 1930-31 Bobcat Basketball team will be held some time in January. An exact date is being worked out and will appear in the next issue of the Alumnus. The 1931 team won the Buckeye Conference championship and finished the season with 12 victories and only four losses.

of Nothing." The band caught up with the jazz and jitterbug of 1940 and then the OU "Bop-Cat" of 1951. It formed BOP and played Stan Kenton's "Intermission Riff," especially arranged by Jack Pierson, Cleveland junior. James Kirwan, senior from Lakewood, was featured on the drums in this number.

A Coffee Hour for alumni and friends was held in Cutler Hall following the game, with deans and faculty members greeting former students.

Homecomers closed the day at the two campus-sponsored dances and at the many private affairs offered by fraternities, sororities, and Athens residents.

The two dances were sponsored by WRA and Torch. The former's affair was held in Men's Gym, with the orchestra of Wib Lanning, '51, graduate student from Logan, providing the music, while the Athens Armory was the scene of the Torch dance, where music was by Jack Pierson's orchestra.

PROFESSOR LEHMAN
among specially informed

WHEN "WHO KNOWS -- AND WHAT" came into existence in 1949, its editors justified its being because of "an everyday need . . . for a . . . reference book listing knowers and their fields, subjects, specialties, and conversancies."

Included in the impressive and selective volume, subtitled "among authorities, experts, and the specially informed," was Ohio University's Dr. Harvey C. Lehman. His field is psychology, his specialty is an intensive and extensive study of the correlation of age and genius and age and leadership. And no one is more conversant with his field than Dr. Lehman is with his. No one can more accurately tell you at what age you are likely to reach your productive peak in your career. His studies in his field have been broad, ranging, for example, between such two divergent areas as medicine and music. In the latter study, Professor Lehman collaborated with Prof. DeForest W. Ingerham, of the University's School of Music.

All told, approximately 150 published pieces of writing bear the name of Professor Lehman, with the subject matter covering not only his specialty but a dozen other areas of psychology. Included in this total, mostly articles for learned journals, are several monographs and two books.

Professor Lehman has been a teacher 36 years, 24 of them at Ohio University. He came to Ohio University as an associate professor in 1927 and received full professorial rank eight years later.

Prior to coming here, he had been a member of the faculty of the University of Kansas for several years. Before that, he had taught in the junior college at Hibbing, Minn., North Dakota Normal, at Mayville, had been principal of the high school at Hiawatha, Kans., and had served a year in the army.

A native of Kansas, Professor Lehman received A.B., B.S., and M.A. degrees from the University of Kansas. His doctoral degree was granted by the University of Chicago in 1925.

He is a member of Phi Delta Kappa, Sigma Xi, the American Psychological Association, the Midwestern Psychological Association, American Association for the Advancement of Science, American Educational Research Association, and is listed among American Men of Science, and Leaders in Education.

The motivation, aside from any personal and inherent factors, for Dr. Lehman's long study of behaviors might be found in his recalling of Pope's observation that "the proper study of mankind is man." Psychology, says researcher Lehman, is one of the approaches to this proper study.

Teacher Lehman, hoping to incite emulation, feels successful when he finds a student who "wants to go on with learning." He believes that about all the teacher can expect to do is impart a "taste for learning and hope that the student will cultivate it."

Something more of Professor Lehman's philosophy of education can be found in his address to the Midwest Psychological Association in Chicago, 1947.

Called a "prominent psychologist" by the Associated Press in its account of his address, a plea that the United States try to maintain world leadership by solving the puzzle of why every great nation has ultimately declined or fallen, Dr. Lehman asked if it was "lack of 'education' that led to Germany's downfall."

"Or," he asked, "shall we conclude that the kind of education imparted is perhaps even more important than the amount thereof."

Faculty News—

Attend Cleveland Meeting

Mrs. Margaret Davis, '32, director of residence services, and Dr. Vivian Roberts, director of the School of Home Economics, attended the annual meeting of the American Dietetic Association in Cleveland. Dr. Roberts participated in a joint conference of deans and directors of home economics and heads of hospital dietary departments.

Dr. Edwards at Oak Ridge Meeting

Dr. John E. Edwards, B.S. '30, A.M. '32, professor of physics, was a member of a symposium at Oak Ridge, Tenn., recently. The five-day meeting dealt with the role of engineering in the development of atomic energy.

Is National Panel Member

Prof. Vincent Jukes, '30, director of radio for the University, was a panel participant at the meeting of the National Association of Educational Broadcasters in Biloxi, Miss., early this month. Professor Jukes took part in a discussion of "Clinics for Education Stations."

Attends Phi Beta Kappa Conference

Prof. Raymer McQuiston, of English, attended the meeting of the nominating committee of the united chapters of Phi Beta Kappa last month in New Haven, Conn. Professor McQuiston has been a member of the committee for the past nine years, serving as chairman the past three years. At the meeting he helped inaugurate nominating procedure changes which he recommended and which have been approved by the senate of the united chapters.

Heads School Boards Group

Dr. Don R. Clippinger, director of the Graduate College and president of the Athens City School Board, was re-elected president of the Southeastern Ohio School Board Association at their annual meeting. The association was formed a year ago, largely through the work of the University's Center for Educational Service, and is the first such organization in the state. Efforts are now being made to organize other regional groups, with the ultimate aim of a statewide organization.

Members of the College of Education faculty who participated in the recent association meeting were Dean George J. Kabat, Dr. H. E. Benz, Dr. Gilford Crowell, Dr. R. L. Morton, '13, and Professors E. P. Lynn and F. H. McKelvey.

On the Alumni Front

Following is a review of the October meetings and planning sessions of some of the organized alumni centers. Reports have not yet been received from some other groups.

Akron Women

Fifty some members of the Akron Association of Ohio University Women met for tea, October 6, at the home of Mrs. Kenneth K. Kutz (Gail Fishel, '22x), 207 Durward Road. The special guest and speaker of the occasion was Elizabeth J. Herbert, '22, a Cleveland high school teacher and then vice president for women of the Ohio University Alumni Association. Lillie Greer, '25, 2-yr., was chairman of the hostess committee.

Mrs. Ray C. Sutliff (Josephine Williams, '23) assumed office as president of the alumnae group and announced her committee appointments for the year.

Cincinnati

Another group of half a hundred alumni met, October 23, at the Hotel Alms in Cincinnati in a meeting presided over by Edward B. Wright, '38, who since that date has been elected vice president for men of the general alumni association.

Buffet refreshments and an interesting movie were provided by representatives of the makers of Kraft cheeses.

In the business session Mr. Wright who has headed the Cincy Bobcats, was elected president of the Cincinnati chapter. The new vice-presidents who will head the men's and women's divisions are, respectively: Frank H. Hazeltine, '29, and Mrs. Charles S. Dautel (Isabelle Brown, '46).

Lancaster

One of the most spirited and successful alumni affairs in recent years was the dinner meeting held October 29 at the Lancaster Hotel, in Lancaster, during which the onetime strong Fairfield County chapter was reactivated.

So well supported were the efforts of the planners that attendance had to be limited to 139, the capacity of the hotel's private dining facilities.

An excellent dinner was preceded by an invocation by John H. Weis, '40. In the postprandial program Gordon W. Herrold, '24, welcomed the campus delegation and all others in attendance before introducing Toastmaster Jack E. Brown, '37.

Musical entertainment was provided by Kathleen Downey, Athens, soprano, an Ohio University sophomore, and Captain Rodney Cron, tenor, of the Ohio U. ROTC staff. The accompaniments to a program of solos and duets were by Lyndall Woolley, a School of Music senior and another Athens girl.

The principal speaker of the occasion was University President John C. Baker. Others from the campus who spoke briefly or were introduced were Alumni Secretary Clark E. Williams, '21; Associate Secretary and Fund Director Martin L. Hecht, '46; Brandon T. Grover, '19, assistant to the president; and Head Football Coach Carroll Widdoes. Coach Widdoes showed movies of the Homecoming game at the conclusion of the formal program.

Paul J. Hyme, '38, chairman of the committee on arrangements, expressed well deserved words of appreciation to the members of the several committees that had cooperated to bring off the unusually fine party.

An impromptu but much enjoyed feature of the program was the greeting from Eddie (Jim) McWilliams, '11x, of Esmont, Va., a onetime headliner on Keith's deluxe vaudeville circuit, later a pioneer in the development of radio quizz programs, and now a gentleman farmer in Virginia's swanky horse country.

Elected to head the chapter and its two sub-divisions for the coming year were: Jack Brown, president; and Robert D. Dickey, '49, vice-president for men, and Mrs. E. E. McMillen (Florence Sherrick, B.S. Ed. '43 M. Ed. '51), vice president for women.

Houston

Sixteen Houstonians had dinner together, November 6, at Bill Williams' Chicken House (a really delightful place in spite of its name) in the Texas city.

Flying over from Biologi, Miss., where he was a panel leader at a radio education conference, Vincent Jukes, '30, associate professor of dramatic art and speech, told the dinner group what is going on "back home," showed color slides of the campus and new buildings, and acted as narrator during the showing of some football movies.

Mrs. James E. Partlow (Norma Vandervort, '43) was the party's chief planner. This was the second alumni get together in Houston in recent months. Another will be held next spring at which a formal organization will be effected.

Planning Sessions

Huntington, W. Va. planners under the chairmanship of E. M. "Twink" Starr, '20, had a luncheon meeting at the Frederick Hotel during which preliminary arrangements were made for a reception to be held at the Huntington Women's Club, 12th St. & Huntington Ave., following the Ohio Marshall football game on Thanksgiving Day afternoon.

Kroger President Named University Trustee

JOSEPH B. HALL, president of the Kroger Co., has been appointed a trustee of Ohio University. His term will run to May 14, 1956.

Governor Lausche appointed the Cincinnati man to succeed Mrs. Fred Luchs (Evelyn M. Coulter, '27), who resigned when she moved from Ohio to Los Alamos, N. M.

The new trustee attended the University of Chicago as a Strong Educational Foundation scholarship student. A versatile student, he was elected to Phi Beta Kappa and won a letter in track. After college, he became the 440-yard hurdle national champion as a member of the Chicago Athletic Club team.

Before joining the Kroger Co., he spent 10 years in the real estate and banking business in Chicago. President of Kroger since 1946, he joined the organization in 1931 as general manager of its real estate department in Cincinnati. In 1935 he moved to merchandising and went through a training period as a Kroger clerk. His major positions with the company have included vice president in charge of manufacturing operations, treasurer, and executive vice president.

Mr. Hall is a veteran of World War I. He is married and has three children.

He is a director of the Cincinnati Chamber of Commerce, chairman of the executive committee of Cincinnati's Citizen's Development Committee, and a member of the executive board of the Cincinnati Area Council of the Boy Scouts.

He is a trustee of the Ohio State Council of Retail Merchants and a member of the Business Advisory Council for the United States Department of Commerce.

Phi Beta Kappa Celebrates 150th Anniversary

ALUMNI WHO are members of Phi Beta Kappa will be interested in knowing that this year the Lambda Chapter will join the other 150 chapters in celebrating the 150th anniversary of the founding of the fraternity, which was formally organized on December 5, 1776, at the College of William and Mary. Early in December the Edwin Watts Chubb Library will have a display featuring the history and activities of the society. On December 12 after the usual initiation and the dinner honoring the recently elected members in course, Dr. William E. Alderman, of the Class of 1909, Dean of the College of Arts and Sciences of Miami University, will deliver a special anniversary address open to the public in the audi-

The charter members of the Ohio University chapter, established in 1929, included President E. B. Bryan, Dean Edwin Watts Chubb, and Professors Gubitz, Hess, Jeddleloh, McQuiston, Porter, Sias, Wilkinson, and Wray. The resident faculty membership now is approximately thirty, and the Chapter has 488 living members elected since it was established.

architects in the planning of the building, making an exhaustive study of buildings of this kind and eliminating their known weaknesses and faults in the designing of the Ohio University project.

Sponsors of the Ohio Conference for Speech Education, generally held in Columbus, were the Ohio Association of Speech and Hearing Therapists, Ohio Association of Secondary Teachers of Speech, Ohio Association of College Teachers of Speech, and the Ohio High School Debate League.

Principal speakers were Dr. Bower Aly, professor of Speech at the University of Missouri and editor of the Quarterly Journal of Speech; Dr. Helmer R. Myklebust, professor of audiology at Northwestern University; Robert F. Jones, member of the Federal Communications Commission; and Robert Wheeler, of the Ohio Museum, who is administrative assistant to the Ohio Sesquicentennial Commission.

Dr. Aly gave the address at the dedication. W. Hayes Yeager, of Ohio State University, presided, and President Baker and Dean of Fine Arts Earl C. Seigfred welcomed the conference members to the University.

Tuesday prior to the Saturday program, an earlier phase of the dedication featured an address by Dr. James H. McBurney, dean of the School of Speech at Northwestern University, and an open house for the campus in general and townspeople.

little interest in representative government.

"The interest in and knowledge of our form of government which I have in mind signifies much more than simply being a bitter anti-Communist and believing if we ban the Communist Party all dangers to freedom will disappear," he emphasized.

He said that a person really concerned over free universities and the national welfare should know Communism so well that he recognizes its weaknesses and can convince others of them and should know his own society so well that he can correct its weaknesses when they appear.

Interpreting his fourth "must" for higher education, Dr. Baker said capacity for intellectual growth refers to self-education and indicates the ability to get excited intellectually in college as well as later in life about some subject and sufficient urge to learn about it "on your own" in an effective manner.

"Too many of us depend on courses. We talk too much about instruction, not enough about learning and self-education," declared the president.

He said that while there is a need for formal adult education beyond the college age, he feared that college graduates' dependency on such is an indictment of higher education.

"The ability to grow intellectually is related closely to our educational program," said President Baker.

He asserted that there are "no finalities in university education, only the capacity for growth." And capacity for growth, he pointed out, is fostered by quality education.

He described quality education in terms of "research, scholarship or truth-seeking, however you desire to define it; good teaching, which means inspiring students, not necessarily in research, but through research; developing their minds, hearts, and character so that they will forever love knowledge, beauty, kindness, freedom, and mankind."

The president told the students, "Only with your support can any faculty achieve its purposes. This in every sense is 'our' university—which means you, me, our faculty, our generation."

Here and There Among the Alumni

There is never a dull line in correspondence from Mrs. A. W. Campbell (MARGARET KIRKENDALL) of Boulder, Colo., now Ohio University's oldest living woman graduate. (For a report of the death of her brother, see page 31). In a letter written a number of years ago Mrs. Campbell related some anecdotes associated with Ohio University which her father had told her in her childhood. "The one which was most thrilling to us children happened in 1852 when Dr. Solomon Howard came to be president of Ohio University. It was my father's first term as a student there and he and a friend had

MRS. ANNETTE WEIHR MCGINLEY, widow of the late L. D. MCGINLEY, Sr., '94, has again taken up residence in Hamilton after several years in Athens. She is a sister of AMY M. WEIHR, '95, retired teacher of Ohio University's Elementary School, who died last year. A son, L. D. "BUD" MCGINLEY, JR., '24, is an engineer with the American Rolling Mill Co. in Hamilton. Another son, Brig. Gen. Eugene McGinley, is in command of Army of Occupation forces in the Stuttgart area of Germany.

TULLIS A. PELTER visited the Ohio University campus, August 20, for the first time since he received a diploma in electrical engineering in 1903. A native of Centerburg, he has resided in California since 1925 where he was for many years an electrical contractor and dealer. He is now retired and living in Lakeside, Calif. With him on the Ohio visit was his wife, a native Californian.

1906

ORVILLE F. FIGLEY, ex (see picture), a one-time Athenian but now a resident of Wilmette, Ill., on October 1 became assistant to the vice president for sales of the U. S. Steel Supply Co. in Chicago. The company and its predecessors were all subsidiaries of the United States Steel Corp. He has been with these concerns for the past 41 years. From 1905 to 1909 he was associated with the Stores Department of the Baltimore & Ohio Southwestern Railroad in Chillicothe. Mr. Figley is a brother of Mrs. Orla G. Miller (ALICE FIGLEY, '12, 2-yr), of Glen Ellyn, Ill. A daughter, Jane, graduated from Northwestern University as a chemistry major in 1949 and is now library assistant at the Abbott Laboratories in North Chicago.

1907

Two Athens alumnae of the Ohio University chapter of Alpha Gamma Delta national social sorority have been awarded the "Arc of Epsilon Pi" by the Grand Council of the sorority, an honor given only "for faithful, continued and outstanding service to an undergraduate or alumnae chapter or to both." The two Greek letter women are Mrs. Harry Z. Foster (GRACE ROWLES, 2-yr) and MARGARET EDITH BURT, '40x. The two were guests of honor at an alumnae dinner in Athens early last month.

1908

Ranco, Inc. of Columbus, a concern headed by E. C. RANEY, 2-yr., and manufacturing automatic reclosing circuit breakers and many other electrical devices, opened a new plant near Glasgow, Scotland, earlier this year. Abroad, the company is known as Ranco, Ltd. A new plant was opened at Delaware, Ohio, about a year ago. The company, currently engaged in war work, has expanded rapidly during the last few years.

1909

The oldest and youngest persons attending the alumni party in Charleston, W. Va., following the Ohio U.—Morris-Harvey football game on September 22 were DR. ROBERT E. NYE, 2-yr., a Charleston osteopathic physician

(see picture), and his guest for the day, Phillip Nye, an Ohio University sophomore and son of MAJOR EARL L. "HAPPY" NYE, '27, and Mrs. Nye (EVA MILLER, '25), Athens. No genealogist, the editor (to whom any relationship beyond the first cousin stage is complex) can only give his readers the facts and let them figure out the relationship between Dr. Nye and Phil. It's this way. The older man's father and the younger man's grandfather were brothers. The Charleston osteopath at one time practiced his profession in Buenos Aires, Argentina. Early in the 1920's he went to London, England, where he practiced until 1940 when he returned to established themselves in a room in a dormitory and were spending their first evening. Suddenly there was 'a sound of revelry by night' and pandemonium seemed to have broken loose! Presently the new president knocked at their door—as I remember it, he had also taken a room in the building—and on being admitted said 'Young gentlemen, will you stand by me?' A hearty assurance was given him and one of the boys seized a heavy iron poker, while Dr. Howard himself took up an immense wooden bootjack and grimly announced, 'I will pull some of their boots for them!' . . . Dr. Howard took the demonstration as a direct menace to himself. He had come from the charge of a female seminary where incoming presidents were probably not welcomed according to that evening's program . . . The trio followed the noise over various barricades and traced it to a room with locked door where all had become silent. There being no response to the request for admittance, the new president smashed the lock with the bootjack, and on entering saw a seemingly empty room with the counter-pane of the bed pulled neatly down to the floor. The Doctor advanced, pulled up the covering, and disclosed a solid mass of young men—as many as the recess would hold. President Howard thundered and the various recumbents shamefacedly rolled out to have their names taken down . . . There the story ended with what we children thought was a serious anti-climax. It seemed as if that bootjack should have done famous execution . . . Ah, well, that was before the days of the co-eds."

the States and established himself in Charleston. Dr. Nye is the father of DR. ROBERT E. NYE, '43, New Canaan, Conn., who has recently returned from post-graduate medical studies in London and is awaiting an Army call.

Mary Jane Moler, daughter of the late ARTHUR L. MOLER, 2-yr., a Cincinnati bank official before his death, has entered Ohio University upon a graduate fellowship in human relations. A graduate of Ohio Wesleyan University in 1948 and a teacher in the Cincinnati schools, Miss Moler will serve as a resident counselor at Boyd Hall during her stay on the campus. A brother, Dr. Arthur R. Moler, who was a member of the Ohio University Health Service staff in 1949-50, is now teaching at the University of Tennessee, but expects a call from the Navy at any time, now.

At the Centennial Convention of Alpha Delta Pi national social sorority held at Wesleyan College, Macon, Ga., the founding site, last June, Mrs. Charles C. Millikan (AGNES BECK), of Athens, was awarded a Meritorious Service Award certificate "in recognition of unselfish service and loyalty" to the Ohio University chapter (Xi) of Alpha Delta Pi. Mrs. Millikan, wife of an Athens optometrist and former jewelry store owner, was a patroness of Xi chapter for 25 years. She was initiated into the sorority 12 years ago, an honor accorded but few patronesses in the history of the national organization. A music major, Mrs. Millikan (see picture) will be remembered by many alumni of a score or more years ago as a choir soloist at the Athens Presbyterian Church. She is the mother of DONALD B. MILLIKAN, '24, Athens.

DR. ROBERT L. MORTON, professor of education at Ohio University, in September began a four-year elected term on the Retirement Board of the State Teachers' Retirement System. The Board consists of the state auditor, the Attorney General, the Director of Education, and two elected teacher members.

1914

COL. DON T. NELSON, ex. and Mrs. Nelson, recently of Tokyo, Japan, are now at home in Junction City, Kansas. Colonel Nelson retired in August after thirty years of service in the Regular Army. His last assignment was as general procurement officer for the Army of Occupation in Japan. A brother, LIEUT. COL. ANDREW C. NELSON, '26, retired from the Army two years ago after the development of a heart ailment. He had previously been attached to the Army Finance Office in Paris, France.

1915

JAMES E. KINNISON, JR., ex, for many years an attorney in Canton, is now a resident of Jackson where he is judge of the Jackson County Common Pleas Court. Judge Kinnison recently appointed Mrs. Paul H. Ballard, widow of Ohio University's late business manager, to a position as an investigator of domestic relations for his court in all divorce cases where children 14 years of age or less are involved.

1917

DANA T. BURNS, head of the Speech Department at Baldwin-Wallace College, Berea, and president of the Ohio Association of College Teachers of Speech, attended the fourth annual Ohio Conference for Speech Education held at Ohio University, October 6, in connection with the dedication of the new $900,000 Dramatic Art and Speech Building. Prof. Burns gave one of the responses to the dedication address by Dr. Bower Aly of the University of Missouri.

1918

Mrs. William C. Munds (CATHERINE CHUBB) was an October visitor at the home of her father, Dean Emeritus Edwin Watts Chubb, in Athens. Although 86 years of age the former head of the College of Arts and Sciences and twice acting president of Ohio University, is still physically and mentally alert, and is frequently seen at university functions. Mrs. Munds is the wife of the rector of Christ's Church (Episcopal) in Wilmington, Delaware.

1919

ROSS W. HEADLEY, ex, is resident engineer of the Chesapeake & Ohio Railway, at Huntington, W. Va. He was transferred to the West Virginia city in June from a similar position in Peru, Ind. Mr. and Mrs. Headley (PEARL ROBINSON, '19x) celebrated their 35th wedding anniversary on April 15. They have three children and five grandchildren. When the Bobcats meet the Marshall College Thundering Herd in Huntington on Thanksgiving Day the Headleys will have their first opportunity in a long time to see a Green & White team in action.

Almost every month John W. Galbreath and Company makes news. Early in June the Columbus real estate firm headed by JOHN W. "JACK" GALBREATH, announced plans for a huge industrial, commercial and residential development on a 1160-acre site near the General Motors plant on West

Few Athenians—either of town or gown—knew more Ohio University students and alumni than did Fred H. McCoy, popular West Union Street barber, who died at his home, October 25, following a heart attack.

An Athens barber for 47 years, he formerly owned and operated the Varsity Billiard Room and Barber Shop on Court Street and the Varsity Bowling Alley on West Washington Street.

Mr. McCoy is survived by his wife; two daughters, Mrs. William B. Orr (Lais McCoy, '37x), and Mrs. Francis B. Fuller (Betty Hoyt McCoy, '39x); and a granddaughter, Blythe Fuller, all of Athens.

Broad Street in Columbus. Part of the large tract is being considered as the site of an $8,000,000 Westinghouse Electric Corporation plant for the manufacture of jet engine parts. The estimated purchase price of the acreage was close to one and a half million dollars.

1921

PEARL W. MACE, 2-yr., a teacher in the Chillicothe schools for the past 21 years, was named principal of Central School upon retirement of the previous principal at the end of the past school year. Miss Mace will soon complete work for a baccalaureate degree at Ohio University.

1922

DR. DALLAS L. BROWNING, pastor of North Methodist Church in Indianapolis, Ind., has been named executive secretary of the Methodist Home for the Aged which is to be built in Franklin, Ind. Last month he and Mrs. Browning visited homes of this sort in Ohio, Pennsylvania, and Maryland in the course of a study of buildings and programs. The Brownings' 20-year-old son, Scott Browning, spent two years at DePauw University and is now a junior at Earlham College. Besides his campus work at Earlham he is holding the pastorate of the Methodist Church at New Salem, Ind.

1923

W. M. "MAC" BOBO and Mrs. Bobo, a former Kokomo, Ind., girl brought their son, Don, to the campus for a visit last spring. The young man was so pleased with what he saw and learned that he changed his plans to enter Penn State this fall and is now enrolled at his dad's alma mater. The Bobos live in Connellsville, Pa., where Mr. Bobo is office manager of the Cap Plant of the Anchor Hocking Glass Corp.

1924

With her husband, who is head of technical training for United Air Lines, Mrs. D. L. McDaniel (DOROTHY FARIS) has recently moved from Cheyenne, Wyoming, to San Mateo, Calif. Mrs. McDaniel was at one time associated with United's stewardess training program in Cheyenne. She is a sister of LEAMAN L. FARIS, '27, Toledo, and the aunt of PATRICIA ANNE FARIS, an Ohio University senior who was "called" by Mortar Board last spring. Patricia's brother, Larry, had expected to come to Ohio University this fall, but upon graduation from Toledo's DeVilbiss High School in June he was awarded a University of Michigan scholarship plaque and a Gruen Watch Citation as the outstanding boy in the senior class. In addition, he was given a four-year scholarship to Columbia University. Ohio University was, of course, unable to meet such heavy competition, but it congratulates Larry and wishes him well. The father of these two fine students is a member of the editorial staff of the Toledo Blade.

1925

ROBERT H. HORN and Mrs. Horn (JEAN CAMPBELL, '25, 2-yr.) of Manhasset, N. Y., have a new daughter-in-law. Their son, Robert C., who graduated from Duke University and is now vice president and general manager of the Hicksville (N. Y.) Plumbing and Heating Supply Co., Inc., became the husband of an Orange, N. J. young lady, Mary Gertrude Peppel, on October 6. The new Mrs. Horn is a graduate of Woman's College of the University of North Carolina. The groom's brother, RICHARD HORN, now a senior at Ohio University, was best man in the wedding party.

MRS. BEULAH TOM THOMPSON, first Columbus public school teacher to go abroad as an exchange teacher under the Fulbright Act, returned this fall after an interesting year in Lancashire, England, where she taught in the Todmorden Grammar School. Mrs. Thompson is a physical education teacher in Barrett Jr. High School, Columbus, and a sister of FRED LEE TOM, '14, Athens. The Columbus teacher traded places with Miss Joyce Halstead, whose title is that of physical training mistress. Although called "Grammar," the English school is equivalent to our U. S. high school. Mrs. Thompson has a daughter, Merianne, who spent the past summer with her mother in England. Merianne is now a senior at Ohio State University.

DR. W. RAY SMITTLE, professor of school administration at Wayne University, Detroit, sailed from San Francisco on August 25 to serve on an educational commission in Japan. From the Orient the commission will go to Europe next spring and return to The States in June. The announcement received by the Alumni Office did not state whether or not Dr. Smittle would be accompanied by his wife, who is the former RUTH GORDON, 25.

1927

WILLIAM F. SMILLY has been promoted from the position of advertising and publicity director of the Ohio Fuel Gas Co., in Columbus, to the directorship of a new Information Department established to help develop better understanding of company operations and services. His department will plan information material of interest to employees, customers, service communities and the general public.

1928

DR. MARTIN H. LUTZ, JR., a graduate of the Cornell University Medical School in 1931, is engaged in a medical practice in Roselle, N. J.

1929

VINCENT J. JUKES, associate professor of dramatic art and speech and director of Ohio University's AM and FM radio stations, will be a discussion panel participant at a meeting of the National Association of Educational Broadcasters in Biloxi, Miss., early in November. He will go on to Houston, Tex., by plane, to be the guest of a number of Ohio University alumni at an Ohio U. get-together to be staged in the Texas city. Professor Jukes is assisting in a statewide survey preliminary to the establishment of an educational radio network which will include the five state-supported universities in Ohio. He is chairman of the radio committee of the Ohio Association of College Teachers of Speech and a member of that organization's executive committee.

MAJOR MARGARET DAVIS HALLOWELL has been a member of the Women's Army Corps since 1942. During World War II she served in Iowa, Nebraska, New Guinea and the Philippine Islands. She was integrated into the Regular Army early in 1949. From September 1946 to June 1951 she was statistical and administrative officer in the Ammunition Branch of the Ordnance Research and Development Division in the Office of the Chief of Ordnance in the Pentagon Building, Washington, D. C. Last June she was transferred to the Pittsburgh Ordnance District as chief of the General Office Division. Prior to enlisting in the WAC, Major Hallowell was a health and physical education teacher in the Portsmouth schools.

MRS. ELIZABETH HOPL BASOM, widow of the late DR. JOSEPH A. BASOM, '22x, became a grandmother on October 13 when a son was born to a daughter, Marjorie Basom Hill, in Tucson, Arizona. A former dietician at Arizona State Hospital in Phoenix, Mrs. Basom now holds a similar position in the state hospital in Logansport, Ind.

CLARK C. WHITE, a science teacher at Hayes Junior High School, Youngstown, has been named assistant principal of that school. Before going to Hayes he was a science teacher and assistant coach in Poland High School. He has an M.S. degree from the University of Pittsburgh, married an Ohio University girl (MILDRED PEAFF, '31), and has two sons Clark C., Jr., and David.

The late HARRY F. MERGLER (see picture) would certainly be proud of the latest achievement of his son, Harry W. Mergler, if he were aware of it—and who can say that he is not. The son, a graduate of Massachusetts Institute of Technology, with an M.S. degree from Case Institute of Technology, is now associated with the National Advisory Committee for Aeronautics as a physicist on the staff of the Lewis Flight Propulsion Laboratory in Cleveland. The younger man developed a "differential analyzer" machine for solving mathematical problems and as a result recently completed construction of a second analyzer which is a great improvement on his first and on all others now being used. In developing the first machine, which solves the most complex problems in about twenty minutes, Mr. Mergler says he simply followed the principles of the mechanical integrator laid down by Lord Kelvin 75 years ago. The new machine is twenty times more efficient because the time required to "set up" a problem is cut from hours to minutes. The machine consists of 117 synchronous transmitters hooked together by about two miles of electric wire, plus twenty mechanical devices known as integrators. Problems are set up on the machine simply by pushing buttons. Not only can the machine answer mathematical problems "unsolvable" by paper and pencil, but it is able to solve as many as three ordinarily difficult equations simultaneously. The inventor's father died July 9, 1950. He was an instructor in West Technical High School, Cleveland, and had also been an instructor in machine design and production illustration on the faculty of Fenn College for the past ten years. At the time of his death he was completing final requirements for the Ph.D. degree at Western Reserve University. He was a recent president of the Cleveland Industrial Arts Club, and was the author of numerous texts on high school and industrial arts teaching methods, as well as of a book on the history and design of period furniture. Mr. Mergler's widow is the former LETITIA WALBURN, '20.

Christmas Cards!

Christmas Cards!

The beautiful scene reproduced above, and familiar to all Ohioans, has been used by the Athens Branch of the American Association of University Women in the making of Christmas cards which are being sold to earn money for the organization's scholarship fund.

Printed on a good grade of paper stock in a French fold form and bearing the greeting "A Merry Christmas and A Happy New Year," the folders, with envelopes, sell at $1.00 per dozen, plus 10 cents for mailing costs. Orders may be sent to Mrs. Samuel B. Erskine, 11 Sunnyside Drive, Athens, Ohio. Checks or money orders should be made payable to Mrs. Erskine who, incidentally, is the former Mary Vickers, '22.

The picture was taken last winter by Donald Lathrop, who is now editor of "The 1952 Athena."

DELBERT E. NIXON, former clerk of the Ohio House of Representatives, has been appointed supervisor of school instruction in the state's penal and correctional institutions by State Welfare Director Lamneck at a salary exceeding $6,000 a year. He will develop schools at the London Prison Farm, Marysville Reformatory for Women, and the Marion Training School. Schools have already been established at the Ohio Penitentiary, Mansfield Reformatory, Boys Industrial School, Lancaster, and the Girls Industrial School, Delaware.

The sale of one of Court Street's oldest businesses, the Rauch Bakery, was consummated recently when this well known establishment was purchased by Carl E. Radford, Athens, and HENRY "HANK" CORRADINI, of DONALD W. SHEPHERD, Barnesville school superintendent, was named president of the Association, and Supt. H. L. Sullivan, '19, of the Marietta Public Schools, was chosen secretary-treasurer for the coming year. The Association voted to hold its 1952 meeting in Cambridge.

LIEUT. ANTHONY P. SALVAGGIO is reported to have arrived in the Philippines and been assigned to the 18th Medical Corps, Philippines Command (Air Force) at Clark Air Force Base. Lieutenant Salvaggio is also a graduate of Teachers College, Columbia University. He has been in military service since 1943 and was formerly connected with the Veterans Administration hospital in Albuquerque, N.M.

CAPT. MARIE STONE, who returned this summer from a two-year assignment at General MacArthur's Occupation Forces Headquarters in Tokyo, as a nurse consultant and health educator for Japanese civilians, has been appointed a district public health education consultant by the Ohio Department of Health. Her area covers twenty counties in Southeastern Ohio. She succeeds PAUL W. SCHUSTER, '48, who has accepted a similar position at the Cuyahoga Falls district office. Miss Stone served as a nurse consultant under General Eisenhower at Expeditionary Force Supreme Headquarters in the European Theater during World War II. In this capacity she travelled through thirteen countries, with British and French armies, setting up and directing essential nursing and medical services in combat areas.

Miss Yasuko Tsuchihashi, a resident of Tokyo, Japan, and a graduate of Keisen Girls' School, is enrolled for graduate work at Ohio University on a tuition scholarship granted by the University, with traveling expenses to the United States and board and room costs provided by the Board of Foreign Missions of the Presbyterian Church in the U.S.A., of which MARGARET M. FLORY, A.B., '36, A.M. '38, is secretary for student work. Miss Flory reports that since Miss Tsuchihashi has arrived on the Ohio University campus the Japanese girl has been writing "enthusiastic and grateful letters."

In a thumbnail sketch of his activities since graduation, YALE J. NEWMAN, of Long Beach, N. Y., packed the following information into a brief paragraph: "A great deal of water has gone over the dam since '36. Master's degree at Teachers College—teaching at Columbia College—six years of high school teaching (health and physical education)—director of athletics at Bard College—and then the Navy for four years where I served as signal officer aboard the 'Fighting Lady' (the U. S. S. Ticonderoga). After getting out of the Navy I was appointed director of recreation for the City of Long Beach and the public school system. This is my fifth year. It is a full-time job, and then some. This resort community has an all-year-round population of 20,000 and during the summer the population goes to 80,000. Our program now is considered by most recreational authorities as one of the outstanding recreation programs in the East. This is largely due to the fine cooperation of the child-conscious members of our community, of which there are a great number. I have been happily married for thirteen years and have two boys, Dick, 8, and Wayne, 4½."

LAWRENCE D. BOORD, general agent in Dayton for The Ohio National Life Insurance Company, was informed during the past summer that the Boord Agency had ranked among the company's leading agencies during the year 1950-51. The Ohio National operates in 27 states.

CLAIR C. "DUCKY" DUNN, B.S.Ed. '37, M.Ed. '40, was elevated to the head football coachship at Toledo University on November 1 following the unexpected resignation of Coach Don Greenwood as a result of inter-school disagreement over actions following the Toledo-Bowling Green football game on the previous weekend. Coach Dunn, an all-Buckeye and all-Ohio fullback at Ohio U., had been offensive end coach and defensive line mentor at Toledo

(See Class of 1912 Notes)

Charleston, W. Va. The two men are brothers-in-law. The former has been in the men's clothing business for the past five years, while the latter has been an automobile dealer in Charleston for the past two years. With Mrs. Corradini (HELEN RADFORD, '34x), and their three children, Mr. Corradini expects to move to Athens soon. The partners, who will share active management of the bakery, have announced that there will be no change in the name of the firm. Mrs. Radford was the former JESSIE SMART, '38. The retiring owner, Frank X. Rauch, who conducted the business for 32 years, is the father of Mrs. Ralph Dupler (JEAN RAUCH, '33), and FRANK X. RAUCH, JR., '37x.

1934

MATHEW A. FEHN, assistant football coach and physical education instructor at Lancaster High School for the past two years, has been recalled to active Navy duty. A lieutenant commander in the Naval Reserve, he reported on October 19 to the Naval Amphibious Base at San Diego, Calif. "Matty" was a member of the Bobcat football squad that defeated Navy, 14-0, on its home field in Annapolis in 1932. He is married and has two sons.

Two Ohio University men were among the principal officers elected to head the Eastern Ohio Teachers' Association at the annual meeting in Marietta on October 27.

MRS. ALBERT JOHNSON
(See Class of 1929 Notes)

U. Before engaging in collegiate coaching he was head of the Physical Education Department and assistant football coach at Waite High School in Toledo.

1938

The 137th Tank Battalion, Medium, a unit of Ohio's 37th National Guard Division and made up largely of men from Ashtabula, has been ordered to report for Federal duty at Camp Polk, La., on January 15, where the entire division is expected to train for about eight months. Battalion commander for the 137th is LIEUT. COL. HERBERT E. GORDON, who was a captain in the 13th Armored Division during World War II.

MAJOR ROBERT W. WEST, is now attached to the Directorate of Operations, Strategic Air Command Headquarters at Offutt Air Force Base in Omaha, Neb. He graduated from the field officers' course at the Air Command and Staff School, Maxwell A.F.B., Ala., last August. LIEUT. COL. JOHN A. MUNDEE, '41, was a classmate at the Maxwell school.

LIEUT. COL. PETER I. OLSEN and his family (see picture) are now at the headquarters of the Fleet Marine Force "somewhere in the Pacific," where the former is headquarters ordnance officer. (Editor's note: If one were to guess Colonel Olsen's location from the presence of hula dancers in a picture sent to the Alumni Office, Hawaii would probably be a better guess than some others. Let not the Colonel's friends be worried, however. His wife is with him.) The picture was taken upon the Olsens' arrival at Pearl Harbor. "The little guy I am holding," writes the father, "is Peter Leonard, born 10 March 1951 at the Naval Medical Center, Bethesda, Md." Two-year-old Louise is in the arms of her mother. Colonel Olsen was commissioned in the Marine Corps in 1941 and during World War II he participated in the campaigns for Guadalcanal and Cape Gloucester. Mrs. Olsen is the former Martha Herland of Brooklyn, N. Y.

JAMES L. McCLANAHAN, for several years a sanitarian with the Morrow County Health Board at Mt. Gilead, is now a resident of

(See Class of 1932 Note.)

Lakewood and associated with the Belle Vernon Milk Company of Cleveland. His wife was MARIAN PIERCE, '36, before their marriage. Mr. McClanahan recently received an M.A. degree in public health from the University of Michigan.

1940

WILLIAM J. BENKERT, JR., is on leave of absence from his position in the Public Relations Department of the Goodyear Aircraft Corp. in Akron, to pursue work on a master's degree in the New York State School of Industrial and Labor Relations at Cornell University in Ithaca. Mr. Benkert received a law degree last June from the Akron Law School, where he had been enrolled for night work during the past four years. At Cornell he is concentrating on labor law, collective bargaining and personnel administration. Bill joined Goodyear Aircraft in 1947, serving first as editor of its weekly house organ and as coordinator of the Aircraft suggestion system. He was relieved of his editorial duties by another Ohio University man, JAMES P. BANKS, '50. Mrs. Benkert and their 2-year-old son, Billy, are with Mr. Benkert in Ithaca.

In a letter to an Ohio University faculty friend last spring, RUBEN G. PLASKOFF indicated that he was planning to forsake a career in dramatics on stage and screen for a not unrelated one, that of teaching dramatics. Since graduation Mr. Plaskoff has spent five years in the Army, ending with the rank of captain, during which he produced, directed and participated in plays for the Special Services Department. Following that he had a fling in the movies and on the legitimate stage.

LIEUT. PEARL L. SPULER, of the Navy's Civil Engineers Corps, is now on assignment to the Public Works Department of the Naval Ammunition Depot at Hastings, Neb.

CAPT. VICTOR M. NIXON, who received an Army commission in 1942 and has continued in military service since that time, has recently returned from service in Japan and Korea and is now a member of the ROTC staff at the University of Oklahoma in Norman.

WILLIAM R. MANTER is now a C. P. A., having passed the Delaware examinations last spring, and is in his own accounting business—Manter and Carr—in Dover, Dela. His brother, MAJOR EARL W. MANTER, '41, for some years an accountant with the firm of Ernst & Ernst in Philadelphia, has been recalled to active service by the Air Force and is now resident auditor at the Langley Air Force Base in Virginia. Mrs. Manter (EVELYN MARKS, '42), and their two sons, Robert and Earl, are with Major Manter at Sinclair Farms, Hampton, Va.

MICHAEL J. SHAPIRO is a student in the St. Louis (Mo.) University Law School.

RICHARD M. FOSTER is owner and manager of the Foster Concrete & Building Supply Co. in Bowling Green.

1943

DOROTHY A. DICK is principal of the Davis-Monthan Air Base Elementary School at Tucson, Ariz. She received her Arizona school administrator's certificate last summer.

KENNETH M. LEIGHTON, a former tax accountant with the Cleveland Graphite Bronze Co., is now service manager of the Replacement Sales Division of that company. He and Mrs. Leighton (BARBARA BROWN, '43), have an adopted daughter, Martha Lee, who was born last April.

Four Ohio University graduates received Doctor of Medicine degrees at Western Reserve University last June and will be hanging out shingles somewhere after a period of interning or further study. The four were HARMAN O. TIDD, WESLEY A. ROADS, '47, ARTHUR H. SHAPIRO, '47, and RICHARD J. FREEMAN, '48.

In a half-page story with pictorial accompaniment, the Baltimore Sun on September 14 gave a biographical sketch of JOSEPH L. STANTON and told of his highly successful efforts as director of the Export and Import Bureau of Baltimore, Md. A native of Youngstown and a journalism major at Ohio University, Mr. Stanton started out as a reporter for the Columbus Dispatch. He then moved on to the Chicago Daily News as a feature writer, and then to a paper in New Orleans. Thirty months later he became city editor of the Morgantown, (W. Va.) Post. From that position he went to the Baltimore Sun. As a lieutenant in the U. S. Coast Guard he saw World War II service in the Caribbean.

the Mediterranean and the Pacific. A post-war connection with the Baltimore Association of Commerce lead to his present position.

MRS. EHELEN McDANIEL BIDWELL, B.S. Ed. '45, A.M., '47, and her husband, BURTON H. BIDWELL, '49x, of El Centro, Calif., report that they are now both confirmed "desert rats," and that in spite of the 115 and 120-degree summer temperatures, they love the Imperial Valley. "The winters are ideal," Mrs. Bidwell writes, "and occasional weekends in San Diego and Los Angeles help us to forget the summer heat." Mr. Bidwell is city sales tax auditor of the city of El Centro. He holds a public accountant's license and is handling all phases of taxation in the city government. Mrs. Bidwell is dean of girls and a teacher at El Centro's

Central Union High School. The Bidwells would like very much to hear from friends who lived in Ohio University's Veterans' Village in 1946-47. Their address is 656 Brighton Ave., El Centro.

POLLY JOHNSON has recently completed work for a master's degree at Tulane University in New Orleans, La., where she spent the last two school years. Since graduation from Ohio University, and until she entered the Southern school, Miss Johnson had been executive secretary for the Girl Scouts in Hammond, Ind.

Theodore B. Myers, husband of the former MARY BONB, '46, and assistant professor of biology at Capital University of Columbus, has been called back into the Navy and is currently stationed at the U. S. Naval Communications Station at 90 Church Street, New York City. Lieutenant and Mrs. Myers are living at Floral Park out on Long Island.

FIRST LIEUT. KENNETH C. COOLEY, ex. is an F-84 Thunderjet pilot with the 136th Fighter Bomber Wing based in Japan. He entered combat last May and is credited with 30 combat missions over Korea. Besides Ohio University, Lieut. Cooley has been a student at Purdue University.

LIEUT. GEORGE S. TOIT, Tiltonville, was recalled to military service in September and is now an Air Force navigator at Randolph Field, San Antonio, Texas.

1947

After earning a Ph.D. degree at Northwestern University and following it up with post-doctoral work as an Ipatieff Fellow, WILLIAM D. HUNTSMAN (see picture) has returned to his alma mater as assistant professor of chemistry. Professor Huntsman won Phi Beta Kappa honors while on the Ohio University campus and at Northwestern was further recognized by election to membership in Phi Lambda Upsilon and Sigma Xi. The Ohio University faculty man married Miss Elizabeth Phinney, a Chicago girl.

MARJORIE HANSON, whose father is Dr. Arthur W. Hanson, professor of accounting at the Harvard Graduate School of Business

DR. WILLIAM D. HUNTSMAN
(See Class of 1947 Notes)

Administration in Boston, is a teacher in the Mariposa County High School in Mariposa, Calif. Her sister, GLORIA HANSON, '50x, is living in Fresno, Calif., and is, the Alumni Office presumes, a teacher.

ROBERT L. WILLIAMS and Mrs. Williams (RUTH ALICE WRIGHT, '46), are residing in Cambridge, Mass., where the former is a graduate student in architecture at Harvard University. Following graduation from Ohio University Bob taught architecture at the University of Florida, Gainesville, for two years and for the last two years has been associated with Daniel Carr, an architect in Columbus. In the latter city Mrs. Wright was a medical technician at Children's Hospital and St. Anthony's Hospital.

Even in faraway places, Ohio University alumni are working for their alma mater. Over in Tokyo JOHN H. LEACH (see picture), a sales representative of the Standard-Vacuum Oil Company, became acquainted with a young Japanese student who wanted to come to the States to continue his education. Needing funds as well as advice, Alumnus Leach arranged for both with the result that Katsaku Asano is now enrolled as a student at Ohio University where he is pursuing a major in economics and industrial management. Mr. Leach has also made arrangements for Asano to go to New York City in February, between semesters, to meet executives of his company. Mr. Asano is shown in the picture with Mr. and Mrs. Leach and some of their friends in Tokyo shortly before "Kai's" departure for America. Mrs. Leach (HELEN GATRELL, '50x) appears in the bottom row of the picture with Kai on her left. Mr. Leach is on the right in the top row. The Leaches expect to have home leave in December.

JOSEPH R. KNAPIK became associated with the Cincinnati Enquirer last month in its Display Advertising Department. He left a position as classified advertising manager of the Newark (Ohio) Advocate to accept the Cincinnati job.

Ambitious, daring, and interesting are only three of the adjectives that could appropriately be applied to a venture upon which PAUL K. CAMP and Mrs. Camp (ELSIE LOVITT, '50) embarked on August 6. In a 17-foot canoe, which they christened "Chatham Voyager" and equipped with a 12-foot sail, they started out from Sanford, N. C., on a trip which would take them approximately two years and thousands of miles to complete. The husband, who was owner of the Outdoorsman Leathercraft Co. in Athens during his college days, has more recently been engaged in graduate work at the University of North Carolina. While in the Southern state they occupied a home on a bluff overlooking Rocky River in one of the most picturesque spots in Chatham County. To name all of their proposed "ports of call" would require more space than is here available. A quick survey of their proposed route, however, shows that after leaving Sanford they will go to the Atlantic at Cape Fear, down the coast to Florida, through the Everglades, up the Gulf Coast, and through the Mississippi and Great Lakes to the East Coast and back to North Carolina. From Key West they may take a side trip to Puerto Rico. They will stop in the Everglades country to study early Indian mounds and to pick up some alligator skins to be used in the pursuit of Paul's hobby. A record of the trip, covering most of Eastern America, will be kept in the form of a diary, photos, and sketches. Mr. Camp is a Navy veteran who served chiefly on aircraft carriers and participated in 18 major engagements during World War II. He met his future wife, a Wave, while in the service.

WILLIAM "BILL" MCCUTCHEON played the part of "Skeeter Roach" in an ill-fated Broadway comedy that opened early in September and closed not long thereafter. The play, "Out West of Eighth," was by Bert McCord and played at the Barrymore Theater. Just at press time word reached the Alumni Office that Bill has joined Freddie Martin's band as comic and trumpet player. He has appeared on a number of New York's top TV shows in some unique characterizations of his own devising.

Mrs. Barbara Jones Ingraham is pictured (page 27) aboard the new Holland-America liner "Ryndam" as she sailed from New York early in September on the vessel's second eastbound trans-Atlantic voyage. In Rotterdam, Holland, she was met by her husband, FIRST LIEUT. RICHARD G. INGRAHAM (other members of the family spell it Ingerham), '49, who is stationed with U. S. Army forces near Frankfurt, Germany. Mrs. Ingraham will spend at least six months with her husband, who is the son of Prof. DeForest W. Ingerham of the Ohio University faculty, and Mrs. Ingerham, and a brother of JANET INGER-

HAM, '50, Columbus. The Army man's wife is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Pha L. Jones (MABEL WAGNER, '23), Fostoria, and a granddaughter of the late Dr. A. E. Wagner of the Ohio University faculty, and Mrs. Wagner. Lieutenant Ingraham is at present on temporary duty in the French zone of Germany where he is engineer in charge of a construction project. He and Mrs. Ingraham recently spent a weekend in Luxembourg where they attended one of the famous parties for servicemen given by Mrs. Perle Mesta, U. S. minister to Luxembourg.

RICHARD N. MACKINNON is a production engineer for the National Carbon Division of the Union Carbide & Carbon Corp. in Cleveland. Dick has completed all but the thesis on an M.B.A. degree at the University of Pennsylvania's Wharton School of Finance. The Cleveland engineer is the son of Prof.

C. N. Mackinnon, of the Ohio University faculty, and of Mrs. Alice Smith Mackinnon, a one-time instructor in home economics at the University.

MONICA ROWE, a native of Jamaica, British West Indies, is now in London, England, where she is "reading for her master's degree." Through Dr. Victor Whitehouse, Ohio University's advisor to foreign students, she reports that her home and farm were not damaged during the late summer hurricane in Jamaica but that the capitol, Kingston, was practically unrecognizable after the storm. In concluding her letter, Miss Rowe said: "I like England, but I must say I miss America, and in particular Ohio University. . . I look forward to receiving The Ohio Alumnus, but unfortunately it is always so long in reaching me. Nevertheless, it is a link with Ohio which I treasure." Miss Rowe's father is a rector of the Episcopal Church.

LIEUT. E. E. "EDDIE" DAVIS, former Athens Messenger photographer, and later associated with the Lamborn Studio in Athens, is now in charge of a Photo NEI team with the Signal Corps Engineering Laboratory Development Detachment at Ft. Monmouth, N. J., NEI, incidentally, stands for New Equipment Introduction. "The Army, through the Signal Corps," the lieutenant explains, "has just engineered a lot of new ideas in photography and quite a bit of new equipment. Consequently, our job is to take the equipment out and instruct personnel who will in turn act as instructors for the field forces. Two of the outstanding developments involve processing photographs and negatives without the use of water except in mixing the three solutions, and one piece of equipment which is going to allow us to use the same water over and over again, the hypo being neutralized and dissipated chemically.

PAUL E. DORNBUSCH and Mrs. Dornbusch (MARGARET TORER), both members of the Class of 1949, would like to see an alumni group organized in Schenectady, N. Y., where they are now located. Assistance in bringing about a round-up of Ohioans in their area has been promised by the Alumni Office. Mr. Dornbusch is a test engineer for General Electric.

1950

LIEUT. JOHN H. LAFFERTY who entered the Associate Quartermaster Company Officer Course at The QM School, Fort Lee, Va.,

MRS. RICHARD G. INGRAHAM

last month reports that he has "Lts. BILL SMILLY, '50, FRED KODES, '51, and RAY HURD, '51, for classmates." Also, enrolled in other QM School courses are "Lts. ROY GRABER, JACK STOCKDALE, JIM WESTFALL, AL MILLSPAUGH, GEORGE AYERS, ROD BARRINGTON, JACK WAGNER and SKIP RICHARDS. Lts. JOE KENNEDY and RAY Cappel are training officers at the Quartermaster Replacement Training Center at Fort Lee and CAPT. R. C. WARD, '39, is the QM RTC Supply officer. . . . LT. AL KORAN completed his training here, and I believe, has since shipped to the Far East. Jack Stockdale and Rod Barrington are expecting to leave for ECOM soon. . . . It's great to run across someone reading the O.U. Post or The Ohio Alumnus occasionally. We're probably the biggest one accumulation of O.U.'ers in the service."

ANN MAXWELL has returned to Hawaii this fall where she is teaching at the Barber's Point School on the Island of Oahu, just outside Honolulu. "You might be interested in knowing," she wrote this fall, "that three Ohio University graduates met at an A.A.U.W. meeting in Hilo last year, much to our surprise. RUTH DAVIS, '35, of Alliance, and ELIZABETH HONG, '47, of Honolulu, and myself. It seemed quite a coincidence that far away and in such a small town as Hilo. . . . I certainly enjoyed it last year and to me the islands are as beautiful and friendly as Arthur Godfrey and the tourist pamphlets claim they are." Miss Davis is a teacher in the Hilo schools, while Miss Hong, who sometimes uses Elizabeth for her given name of Kyung Hee, is with the Sight Conservation Dept. in Hawaii.

JEAN GILFORD is a speech therapist for the Zanesville Public Schools and the Muskingum Society for Crippled Children. Her work with the latter organization is chiefly with cerebral palsied children.

Dr. Ted Hellebrandt, of the Ohio University Economics Department, and his family were driving down one of the principal streets in Portland, Ore., while on an August vacation trip, when someone noticed their license plates and the Ohio University sticker on their car. This person, who hailed them, turned out to be WILLIAM N. VISYAK of Beaverton, Ore., who is sales manager in Oregon for the Ortho Pharmaceutical Corporation. He had first spotted the Hellebrandt car in his rear view mirror as he, too, drove down the Portland street. The visit that followed was a pleasant and animated one, lasting about half an hour. Mrs. Hellebrandt is the former MELBA WHITE '18. Mrs. Visyak was JANET COCHRAN '52x. The Oregon folks have a son, Gregory William, born early this spring.

WILLIAM A. HIGGS, a photography major, is a technician in Anso's color laboratory in Binghamton, N. Y. His wife, Mrs. Jane Higgs, is a former part-time typist in the Ohio U. Alumni Office.

SECOND LIEUT. RICHARD H. MCFARLAND has entered the University of Chicago to begin an intensive meteorological curriculum under the auspices of the U. S. Air Force Institute of Technology. The course is designed to meet the great demand for Air Force officer specialists in the engineering and scientific fields.

JOHN R. ANDREWS, formerly a mathematician in the Armament Laboratory in Dayton, is now a sales statistician with Cincinnati Industries, Inc. His wife is the former ELLIS MARIE SHAFER '50x, who was a secretary to the Coordinator of Veterans' Affairs on campus.

Pledged to two years of home missions work under the auspices of the Women's Society of Christian Service of the Methodist Church, NANCY GRISSOM (see picture) on September 1 began work in the Frances DePauw Home for Latin American girls in Hollywood, Calif., as a housemother to the junior high school girls and as laundry counsellor for all of the 65 girls who live at the home. She pursued a five-week training course at Scarritt College, Nashville, Tenn., during the past summer in preparation for her work. Miss Grissom, who was president last year of the Ohio University chapter of Kappa Phi, Methodist girls' organization, reports that Phi chapter (her own) was awarded the National candlestick as outstanding chapter of the year at the National Council meeting in Grinnell, Iowa, in June. She also reports that Mrs. Charles Ewalt (DELLA COCANOWER, '50), Fredericktown, was elected national vice president and program chairman at the Grinnell conference.

Unique, certainly, but important, is the work of RICHARD W. BRANDON, a kindergarten teacher in McKinley School, Willoughby. A three-column picture on the front page of the September 15 issue of the Cleveland News-Show Teacher Brandon seated at a piano leading his ninety 5-year-olds in a kindergarten tune. When Dick entered Ohio University he planned to teach, but he had no thought that it would be at the kindergarten level. When it came time for him to do his practice teaching, however, the only opportunity was in a kindergarten classroom. He tried it and was sold on it. "These people," as he calls his youngsters, "are as important as anyone, and I plan to teach kindergarten as long as I can be understanding and patient." His Willoughby pupils at first called him "Miss Brandon," and "Mrs. Brandon," before he could get them to call him "Mister." "It shows how they have been tied to their mothers, and how fathers take a back seat in the lives of these little people," he said. For further news concerning Richard Brandon, see Marriages.

TERECITA FELICIANO GONZALEZ, A.M., of

NANCY K. GRISSOM
(See Class of 1951 Notes)

Lares, Puerto Rico, has returned to her home town to become an educational counsellor with the Puerto Rican Department of Health. Miss Feliciano works with groups that are sent out through the island to improve human relations.

Two 1951 graduates will remain on campus as members of the Dean of Men's staff. ALVIN E. LINDHOLM, president of the student body last year, has been appointed assistant to the Dean. He was a public relations major. H. THEODORE OLSON, psychology major, is an assistant to EDWARD A. SUDNICK '50, head of residence at Scott Quadrangle (men's dormitory).

Distressing news has reached Athens concerning RUPEL S. PERKINS, ex. an Ohio University Bobcat grid man in 1949 and 1950, who specialized in kick-offs. He missed much of the latter season when his left leg was broken in a game with Western Reserve. According to word received from a New York hospital Perkins and a friend were riding a motorcycle enroute from Baltimore to New York City on Sept. 24, when their vehicle was struck by a truck. The truck was killed, while Rupel suffered injuries which necessitated amputation of his right leg above the knee at New York's Knickerbocker Hospital. Both the injured man and his father, Ripel Perkins, Sr., were outstanding athletes in Athens High School when enrolled there.

Deaths

WARREN LINCOLN MORGAN

Although U. S. forces are engaged in an undeclared war in Korea, the hard facts of life and death in that area are in nowise softened by the status, or lack of status, of the action there. War or no war, the Alumni Office is planning a new Gold Star service flag on which will be embroidered the names of Ohio University men and women who give their all in the military service of their country. Three such flags, containing a total of 221 names, were hanging in the Edwin Watts Chubb Library at the close of World War II.

Previously reported this year have been the deaths of Ensign ROBERT D. METZGER

FIRST LIEUT. WARREN L. MORGAN

'50x, Mentor, and Lieut. VERNON C. VICKERS, '49x, Athens, in airplane crashes in California and Texas, respectively.

At this time it is the editor's sad duty to report the death in Korea of FIRST LIEUT. WARREN L. MORGAN, '44 (see picture), Erie, Pa., which resulted from the crash of a B-29 bomber against the side of a hill in South Korea, September 13. There were no survivors of the crash.

Lieut. Morgan, who was assistant public information officer at headquarters of the 20th Air Force, had accompanied the bomber crew as an observer on a combat mission to secure first hand information for news stories. The remains of all of the crash victims were interred in Korea with military honors.

The Ohio University man taught in the high school at North East, Pa., and later at Hamburg, N. Y., prior to entering military service early in 1946. He served as an information and educational specialist giving orientation lectures on current affairs and other topics. He also engaged in the preparation of booklets for troop information. He was sent to Korea early in 1947 and was stationed at Inchon, from which he made frequent trips to Seoul. He was separated from the Air Force July 23, 1947, but returned two weeks later and was assigned to Lackland AFB, San Antonio, Tex. He had been back in Korea since last January.

Lieutenant Morgan is survived by his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Charles I. Morgan, 65, Erie, Pa., and by two brothers and a sister.

LAWRENCE RAYMOND SUMMERSETT

Lawrence R. Summersett, '38, of Ft. Wayne, Ind., a certified public accountant, was fatally injured and eight others hurt, some critically, in a traffic accident involving seven automobiles and a truck on U. S. Highway 27 near Waterloo, Ind., October 15. He died of a fractured skull in a Waterloo hospital about an hour after the accident. He was 36 years of age.

Associated with the accounting firm of Hartman, Cooper & Co., Mr. Summersett and a professional associate were returning from a business trip to Angola when their car was struck by a semi-trailer truck which rounded a curve and came upon a line of vehicles which had been stopped for one-way traffic. In attempting to avoid the cars the truck jackknifed and struck the car in which the Ohio U. man was a passenger, demolishing it and damaging a number of others.

Mr. Summersett was a native of Van Wert and after graduation from Ohio University taught in a Van Wert high school for two years. He then enrolled at Northwestern University where he received the Master of Business Administration degree in 1941.

He was employed as an accountant in Dayton in 1941-42, then as a civilian accountant at Baer Field, Ind., for a portion of World War II. In 1944, he joined the staff of Houlihan, Detmer & Co., Ft. Wayne, remaining with that firm for five years. He had maintained a private accounting office for one year prior to joining Hartman, Cooper & Co.

Mr. Summersett married Mary E. Miller, '37, of The Plains, in 1938, and they were the parents of four daughters, Bonnie, 9, Elaine, 4, and 8-months-old twins, Shirley and Sharon, all of whom survive him.

CHARLES R. S. KIRKENDALL

Charles R. S. Kirkendall, '83, died October 17 at the home of a daughter, Mrs. Bert Porter, in El Cerrito, Calif. He had reached the advanced age of 94 years.

A native of Jackson County, Ohio, he was one of seven children to attend Ohio University. His father, a cavalry lieutenant in the Civil War, attended Ohio University in the early 1850's.

A sister, Mrs. A. W. Campbell (Margaret Kirkendall), is a classmate and was the ninth co-ed to enter Ohio University. Now in Boulder, Colo., Mrs. Campbell is Ohio University's oldest living woman graduate. The other Kirkendalls were Mrs. W. A. Hunter (Ella Kirkendall, '86); Mrs. Edgar White (Esther Kirkendall, '88); L. B. C. Kirkendall, '80; James A. Kirkendall, '86; and Fred E. C. Kirkendall, '93.

The deceased was a farmer near Fruita, Colo., during most of his mature life and is recognized as one of the founders and developers of Fruita and the surrounding territory.

All of the Kirkendalls, with the exception of Mrs. Campbell, and possibly Mrs. Hunter, are now deceased. If living, Mrs. Hunter is a resident of Paso Robles, Calif.

HELEN TAYLOR MILLIKEN

A report has recently come to the Alumni Office of the death, last May 24, of Mrs. Frank H. Milliken (Helen Taylor, '23x) at her home in Bowston.

Degree work was completed at Ohio State University. She had resided in Mansfield before going to Bowston.

Married in 1925, she and Mr. Milliken were the parents of three sons, who, with the father, survive her.
